NAZI MINES SINK 10 SHIPS, KILL SCORES

By CHARLES A. SMITH

International News Service Staff Correspondent

LONDON, Nov. 20—Three more British and one French steamer went to the bottom in mine-infested waters off the English coast today as spokesmen charged that Nazi Germany, a loser in submarine warfare, had resorted to indiscriminate mine-laying as a desperate alternative.

Bringing to ten the total number of vessels lost over the week-end off the British coast, the British freighter Pensilva, 4258 tons, the collier Torchbearer, and the trawler Wigmore, went down as a result of "enemy action" today, while an unidentified French steamer sank in the English Channel.

The crew of the Pensilva was rescued, but the Wigmore's entire crew of 16 drowned. Nine were lost aboard the Torchbearer.

MINE "TERROR WEAPON?"

The London Evening Standard said that the sinkings signalized the beginning of Hitler's "sea blitzkrieg" and expressed belief that his "secret and terrible weapon" with which he threatened British destruction is in fact a "magnetic mine."

Two other unidentified vessels were damaged by mines.

Six of the other sinkings occurred in the same region where the Netherlands liner Simon Bolivar was sunk, with a loss of at least 106 lives, on Saturday.

Shortly before noon today, on the basis of latest available information, authorities said they feared at least 200 persons had been killed as a result of the sinkings caused by floating mines. Authorities

Mines exacted a heavy toll from the merchant shipping of warring and neutral nations during a week-end devoid of military developments.

Ten ships were sunk, eight of them off the eastern coast of England.

Heaviest loss of life was on the Netherlands liner Simon Bolivar which sank Saturday while bound from Amsterdam to the West Indies. Authorities said more than 100 persons were lost.

Of the seven other ships which sank near England four were British, one Italian, one Swedish and one Yugoslav. A Lithuanian freighter sank near Rotterdam.

Britain charged Germany with laying mines near commercial shipping lanes used by neutral powers, but Germany denied the mines could have been German.

The western front remained quiet as it has during weeks of only minor patrol and scouting skirmishes while storms lashed the area.

At least surface quiet was established in Prague where 12 Czechs have been executed and several thousand arrested as the result of demonstrations against the German and protectorate governments. Prague workers went to their jobs today despite agitation for protest strikes.

Anti-Aircraft Guns Blast at Mystery Plane Near London

LONDON, Nov. 20 (INS)—Anti-aircraft guns went into action on the outskirts of London and in northern Scotland today.

A German reconnaissance plane swept over an unidentified area of Scotland, calling forth bursts of anti-aircraft fire and sending the population to air raid shelters.

There was no air raid signal in London when a mysterious airplane, as yet unidentified, swept up the Thames estuary at a great height and circled the outskirts of the capital.

The craft passed over Essex and Kent and then headed up the Thames, drawing fire from defense guns. It continued toward London but disappeared before it could be sighted over the capital itself.

Previously, anti-aircraft guns had opened fire on an unidentified white plane seen at a high altitude over a town on the southeastern coast.

RAID SIGNALS SOUND

It was not established whether this was the same machine.

Crowds stood in the streets of the coastal town watching the plane flying in an easterly direction. Later anti-aircraft batteries opened fire on the plane as it flew over the English Channel.

Shells were seen exploding in a circle around the plane, which emerged from the bursts leaving behind a long trail of smoke, indicating it might have been damaged.

VICTORY OVER 6 PLANES

Several other planes were seen in the same area, but they were flying too high to be identified.

Earlier, British authorities claimed a new victory over six German war planes which, they said, attempted to raid the vital Firth of Forth area of southeastern Scotland, but were driven back by Royal Air Force fighters.

A 20-minute air raid sent thousands of residents of the region into shelters, but no bombs were dropped.

The German planes, believed to have been Heinkel bombers and flying boats, were sighted by British boats off the Scottish coast. A warning was flashed immediately and British aircraft rose to meet the invaders, evidently intercepting the German planes over the North sea.

WOMAN'S BATTERED BODY FOUND ON BACK BAY STEPS

Her body battered almost beyond recognition, a woman identified as Mrs. Blanche Manderson, 60, of St. Botolph st., Back Bay, was found dead today in the doorway of a West Newton st. house.

A passerby on his way to work discovered the woman lying face down on the doorsteps a short distance from her lodging place.

Taken to City Hospital in a police ambulance the body was immediately transferred to Southern Mortuary on orders of Dr. Martin O'Brien.

Numerous injuries, including a fractured skull and crushed chest, were given as immediate cause of death.

Police said the woman apparently had been given a terrific beating or possibly had been the victim of a hit-run motorist.

An immediate investigation was started by Back Bay officers, in charge of Sergt. Mortimer O'Connor.

So bruised was the woman that her facial features were difficult to distinguish. Finally, questioning of nearby residents in the St. Botolph and West Newton sts. neighborhood revealed her to be Mrs. Manderson, an elderly widow.

Police said a large handbag and small purse, found lying beside the body, were empty.

BAR CZECH STRIKE

PRAGUE, Nov. 20 (AP)—Prague workers, ignoring agitation for a strike to protest conditions under the rule of Nazi Germany, went to their jobs as usual today with the assurance their complaints would receive consideration.

Anxious to avoid further disturbances following arrests and executions of Czech student leaders and others, the protectorate government appealed to the workers to refrain from striking.

The appeal was accompanied by a promise that protests occasioned by rising prices and other grievances would be studied.

Czech police also warned workers in Prague and four other industrial centers that any strikes today in sympathy for executed compatriots would be suppressed sternly.

4 DIE ON CROSSING

NEW BRITAIN, Ct., Nov. 20 (AP)—Four WPA employes on their way to work were killed today when a Hartford-bound New Haven Railroad passenger train struck their automobile. A fifth occupant of the automobile was injured critically.

The dead, all New Britain residents, were Richard McNamara, Ronald Loomis, William Frazier and Jefemiah Lynch. Their bodies were strewn along the right-of-way. The injured is Joseph Gazda, also of New Britain.

Police Lieut. Michael Flynn said witnesses told him the warning signal lights were operating at the crossing and that the automobile swung to the left to pass a line of cars which had halted at the train's approach.

Japanese Land on South China Coast

HONGKONG, Nov. 20 (AP)—Reports from Chungking said today a Japanese force landed on the South China coast in western Kwangtung province, already numbered 10,000 and was being reinforced hourly, chiefly by cavalry.

The landing was started last Wednesday for the declared purpose of cutting the Chungking government's "back door lifelines" through French Indo-China and British Burma.

Admits 'Dowd Bribe'; Indict Francis Rock

'Baby' Brings Back Her Memory

Dowd Bribe Story Told by Chauffeur

In a 12-page affidavit, Samuel J. Myers, former campaign chauffeur to John F. Dowd, charged today that Dowd, while sheriff, collected money from a South End gambler in return for giving the latter's associate a courthouse job.

Myers also revealed for the first time that it was he who started the probe into the Suffolk County sheriff's administration which so far has resulted in four indictments and is expected to result in many more.

At the district attorney's office today Meyers, who lives in Selden st., Mattapan, told of various deals which preceded Dowd appointments and said that a relative of a former South End speakeasy proprietor had paid Dowd $1200 to win a job as court officer.

Myers said that Dowd rewarded him for his services as chauffeur during the campaign by making him a courthouse custodian.

TELLS OF TALKS

Nine months later he lost his job, and he charges the job was "sold under me" for $400.

"Dowd was appointed sheriff on Oct. 13," Myers said. "On the 15th I drove him to keep an appointment with C——. We went to his home in the South End.

"I went up and got C——. He came down, and Dowd said, 'I can make a court officer right away.' C—— said, 'Okay.'

"The next night we went down there at half past six. C—— was not in and a woman told us he was down at the club, at the Curley headquarters. We went there, and I told C—— 'Dowd wants to see you.' They talked on the sidewalk, and I heard C—— say, 'I'll see you tomorrow night.'

'I SAW THE MONEY'

"The next night we went to a South End hotel. We saw C——. He went into the hotel and came out a few minutes later. He gave something to Dowd. It looked like money. Dowd put it in his inside pocket. We drove up Albany st. towards Dowd's house. He put the light on and in the mirror I saw him counting a lot of money.

"He said, 'Well, that's one obligation off my hands.'

"The next day M—— went to work as a court officer."

(The man he named was a chauffeur for the South End gambler.)

Myers went on to tell of another deal at a downtown hotel.

He said that he was driving Dowd home from a poker game at a Warren st. house when a man riding with Dowd said:

"I would like to throw something into the campaign."

SAYS JOB SOLD

"Dowd said, 'I'll make you a court officer.' At the hotel the next day I heard Dowd say to him, '$1200.' The next day K—— went to work as a court officer."

The man Myers named is a brother-in-law of the former speakeasy proprietor

He said Dowd stalled him off and told him he would give him a better job, but that the job failed to materialize. He said it was given to the brother of a legislator at a $400 price. He declared:

"I went to Dowd and told him I was going after him. He said, 'You won't do that.' I said I certainly would, so I went to see Atty. Reuben L. Lurie of the Bar Association."

This was the story which started the entire investigation of Suffolk County affairs. It was as the result of the Mattapan's man's story that the Bar Association started its probe which finally brought about Dowd's resignation and the grand jury action.

Rock's was the fourth indictment returned by the grand jury in its investgation of charges that county employes in all pay brackets were forced to pay money to hold their jobs under John F. Dowd, who recently resigned as sheriff while under fire.

Armstrong, at his own request was brought from Charles st. jail in a prison van to the district attorney's office. A few minutes after talking to Asst. Dist. Atty. Frederick T. Doyle he was taken before Judge Frederick W. Fosdick.

The court was informed that he wished to change his plea of not guilty to guilty on charges returned in an indictment last week.

SENTENCE IS DELAYED

Assistant Clerk of Court John H. Casey then read the indictment. Doyle informed Judge Fosdick that he did not wish to move for sentence at this time. Armstrong was taken back to the district attorney's office to tell his story.

"There's no use telling lies," he told reporters. "I'm going to tell the whole truth."

It is charged that he solicited gratuities from other county employes to give to Dowd, missing ex-sheriff.

Asked by reporters if he had paid $1500 to hold his own job, he replied:

"No, but things were so bad down there that I was prepared to pay."

ASKED ABOUT $50,000

Asked if it were true that more than $50,000 in gratuities had passed through his hands, he said "See my lawyer."

His counsel is Atty. John J. Newman, chairman of the Democratic city committee, who was in conference over the week-end with Dist. Atty. William J. Foley.

$1700 PAID BY TWO

Peccardi said he had paid $1000 after two go-betweens had approached him.

COOGAN TO WED? BETTY GRABLE SHOULD WORRY!

Here in Play, Betty Has Photo Of Bandman, Too!

"Should I care?"

That was Miss Betty Grable's reaction today to the news that her erstwhile husband, Jackie Coogan, whom she divorced in October, will wed Harriet Haddon, New York chanteuse. Singer, to you.

"I just saw Harriet's picture in the paper, that's all I know," Betty continued, pouting.

She arrived backstage at the Shubert—where she is featured in "DuBarry Was a Lady"—ten minutes late for a noon rehearsal, complete in maroon halter, slacks, polo coat, dark glasses, and blond hair.

In a rush for rehearsal, shapely, red-lipped Miss Grable had no time to talk of Shaw.

"I've got nothing to say about what Jackie does," she continued. "I'm in this show till it ends. Then I've got a contract with Twentieth Century-Fox. I'll go back to them unless I get another great show."

WHAT ABOUT PICTURES

She looked very well at the theater, however.

"Well, what do you want for pictures?" she asked.

"First we'd like you without those long pants on, Miss Grable."

"In shorts, you mean, I hope?"

"Of course."

Miss Grable grinned, but there was a shout from backstage.

"Hey!" the shout said, and the young lady whistled out.

"See me again sometime," she called, and raced down the corridor.

BANDIT SUSPECT SEIZED—Handcuffed to Officer J. C. Norton is Edward Birmingham, said to be a Concord parolee, after he was seized in connection with the daylight slugging holdup of Chelsea pawnshop today.

BANDIT PAIR SLUG CHELSEA SHOPMAN

In a daylight holdup attempt, not 100 yards from the Chelsea sq. police station, two men today beat up the proprietor of a pawn shop on Broadway, then escaped by crashing through a plate glass window.

The victim, Samuel Rubin, 55, of Washington ave., Chelsea, was taken to the Chelsea Memorial Hospital suffering from severe lacerations of the head.

Within a few moments, a blood-stained suspect was captured after a brief struggle in Congress ave., near the scene of the crime.

His single-handed captor was Patrolman James Hurley, who was cited several months ago for grappling, again single-handed, with a gunman who was trying to escape after shooting a Chelsea storekeeper.

ONE SUSPECT FREED

Booked on a charge of armed robbery was Edward Birmingham, 24, formerly of Wallingford, Ct., who told police he had been living at a South End address since his releaes from Concord Reformatory on parole last Nov. 1.

A second suspect picked up on an anonymous tip was released when police took him to confront Rubin at the hospital, and the storekeeper failed to identify him as one of the pair.

The two holdup men ran into the apartment of Mrs. Helen Coelin, terrifying three small Coelin children, oldest of whom is five.

According to Mrs. Coelin, the men took off their bloody topcoats and said:

"We've just been in an automobile accident. Will you help us?"

Mrs. Coelin said she ordered them out of the house, but they picked up some baby's undergarments and wiped the blood from their hands, curtly ordering her:

"You'd better keep quiet about this."

TAKEN AT GUN POINT

At that moment, Patrolman Hurley burst in the front door of the apartment, and the men fled through the back door, with Hurley in pursuit.

After a chase of 100 yards, the patrolman brought down Birmingham with a flying tackle, and took him at gun point to the station house. The other man escaped after a brief brussle with former police officer George Lynn, who was passing.

Rubin told police the men walked into the store and locked the door behind them, approaching the cashier's cage where he was working. One of them said, the shopkeeper declared:

"This is a stickup. Open up that safe."

Instead, according to Rubin's account, he put up a fight.

"I tried to push the nearer one away, and he hit me on the head with the butt of his pistol," Rubin said.

The pistol was found in a pool of blood in the shop's back room.

"Then they decided to run for it, and when they remembered the door was locked they burst out through the window with me after them," Rubin declared.

Jud Brickman, an employe in a furniture store next door, ran out, to find the half unconscious Rubin on the sidewalk. He called police and sent Rubin to the hospital in a passing car.

Scalper Wins Mercy as He Changes Plea

John D. Purcell was afraid it would cost him a "double sawbuck" when he showed up in Roxbury court today on a charge of speculating with football tickets—but his case was filed.

Purcell, who is 57 and lives in Carver st., was arrested Saturday at the B. C.-B. U. game by Officer Roy Bates of the Back Bay station.

"He told me if he went to court he'd be charged a double sawbuck, and I could have the tickets if I'd let him go," Bates testified.

"Are ou afraid you're going to be charged a double sawbuck now?" Judge Frankland W. L. Miles asked Purcell.

"No, your honor, because I'm innocent!" Purcell shouted.

He then launched into a 10-minute defense of himself that had the courtroom rocking with laughter.

"I'm an American citizen! I demand my constitutional rights! I was afraid! I'm innocent!" he cried.

"If you're innocent, you can appeal a finding o fguilty and argue your case before a jury," Judge Miles said, smiling in spite of himself. "But if you plead guilty, I'll file the case."

"Your honor, I'm guilty," said Purcell.

The case was filed.

Blonde Bride Spurns Tommy Manville Job

DALLAS, Tex., Nov. 20—If Tommy Manville, employer extraordinary, wants to hire back his one-time secretary, pretty Mrs. Shirley Bryson, he'd better be prepared to buy out a local bank.

The glamorous Shirley, now the wife of a band leader, is sticking to her modestly-paying job as a bank clerk—the $200-a-week offer o. the asbestos fleir notwithstanding.

Wrathy indeed was the brunette matron over Tommy's jubilant declaration that she had accepted his offer. Her anger also was voiced in a not too gently denunciation of the New York playboy's latest in "employment methods."

Tommy had sought her out in a coast-to-coast radio broadcast and finally located his "dream" secretary through the Dallas police.

"I wouldn't go back to work for Mr. Manville for $1000 a week," she declared indignantly. "And it's very embarrassing that he called the police department to locate me."

Shirley had once worked for Manville, she said, but left him to wed the orchestra leader. She is now employed as a clerk in a bank—a less lucrative but less complicated job.

It isn't the first time that Tommy, along with all his other women trouble, has had secretary trouble.

His former secretary, Yvonne Arden, walked out on him in a fit of temperament, he believes.

"She was getting $150 per week just for helping me open the mail," he explained, "and then she quits. Maybe she resented Elinor Troy," he mused.

Well, maybe she did. The Manville-exploit-of-the-month for October, you may remember, involved the shapely Elinor, who dances in a gold fish bowl or on a dime with equal ease. Less than a month ago, the Manville millions were nicked for $3000 when the sanguine scion chartered a 21-passenger plane to fly Miss Troy from Hollywood to New York.

Tommy explained it all thus:

"Last night I called up Dolly Goering, who used to be my secretary. She's in Cincinnati. Well, I offered her $300 and she turned it down.

"You must be nuts, I told her. Three hundred dollars a week doesn't grow on trees. But she wouldn't have the job. Why, say, if someone offered me a job for $200 a month, I'd run, not walk, to the nearest entrance!"

When Dolly was adamant, Tommy thought of Shirley.

"Put it down in black and white that Manville isn't marrying again!" ordered Tommy. "I'm nobody's Christmas present."

2-Gun Woman Kills Ice-Pick Attacker

DALLAS, Tex., Nov. 20 (AP)—A woman armed with two guns shot down Brooks Coffman, 39, an attorney, on Main st. today. He died a half hour later.

Miss Corrine Maddox, 26, whom Coffman was charged with stabbing with an ice pick last May, surrendered to police soon after the shooting.

"I have just shot Brooks Coffman," assistant Dist. Atty. Jimmy Martin said she told him.

Coffman was under a charge of assault to murder for the ice-pick stabbing of Miss Maddox. Miss Maddox, found wounded at a gravel pit near Irving, Tex., recovered after several weeks in a hospital.

George Lawton, telegraph company representative, told newspaper men he was sitting in a Main st. office when he saw a woman shooting at Coffman. She had a revolver and an automatic pistol.

"She stood over him, about five feet away, firing into him," Lawton said. "He was trying to hold himself up with one hand and hollering and pleading for mercy."

Police said the woman fired eight shots from the automatic and six from the revolver.

Speaking of Fish Stories, Listen!

SANTA MONICA, Cal., Nov. 20 (AP)—This is a story about a fish that didn't get away. It's a whopper, but so was the fish.

Olaf Olsson, film studio carpenter, went fishing Sunday off Malibu beach in his power cruiser. He baited a 500-foot set line with 200 hooks for rock cod and mackerel. Suddenly a tug swung his boat around.

For two hours he fought to bring in his line. When he succeeded he discovered a 400-pound broadtail swordfish had struck one of the mackerel hooks.

On the rest of the line were 300 pounds of mackerel, 50 pounds of cod

Mexico Honeymoon For DiMaggio, Bride

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 20—Slugging Joe DiMaggio of the New York Yankees and his brand new bride, blonde Dorothy Arnold of the stage and screen, today were jubilantly, humming that new ballard, "Down Mexico Way."

For Mexico was their honeymoon destination following a long-publicized wedding at which 30,000 of the popular couple's well wishers darted through police lines for a close-up peek.

It was the Italian colony's biggest holiday in years and the square in front of St. Peter and Paul's Church was jammed with shouting and pushing citizens, eager for a glimpse of their idol.

Police reinforcements were insufficient to keep the crowd from bucking its way into the church, where the smiling DiMaggio clan and close friends were gathered.

The wedding was delayed half an hour while police cleared a way for the bride and her father, Victor Olson, of Duluth, to drive up to the church door. Joe had already slipped in by a rear door.

When the wedding party left the church, they were faced with a cheering mob that resembled a World's Series turnout.

It took ten minutes for Joe and his bride to make their way to their automobile at the curb, and another fifteen minutes for them to get out of the crowd and speed away.

PATIENTS THREATEN WALK-OUT

RUTLAND, Nov. 20—Tubercular patients at the U. S. Veterans Hospital threatened a walk-out today in protest to the transfer of Dr. William Hamlin, ward surgeon, to become effective Dec. 15.

Petitions protesting the transfer, signed by 62 out of the 63 patients in Wards I and K, were immediately sent to State Commander Wilfred E. Jacobs, Veterans of Foreign Wars, at Boston, and to Congressmen McCormack and Casey and Congresswoman Edith Nourse Rogers of Massachusettes.

Dr. Hamlin, a Waltham physician, has been at Rutland Veterans' Hospital about seven years. He was put in charge of Wards I and K when the advanced tubercular cases were assigned there three years ago.

Complaints about hospital conditions brought a demand early this month from State Commdr. Ralph H. Lavers of the American Legion for the removal of Dr. W. E. Park, head of the hospital. Investigation was made. The next development was the order for the transfer of Dr. Hamlin to some position to be designated later.

This order came as a stunning surprise to the Wards I and K patients, who fairly idolize Dr. Hamlin. The patients cite improvements in their physical conditions and the close personal relations which exist between Dr. Hamlin and his patients as reasons why he should be retained there.

Co-Eds Ooze 'Oomph' At Teachers' College!

Pretty girls, and brainy, too, abound, he wrote in the current issue of Tempo, the college newspaper, and offered as evidence pictures of a half dozen of the fairest for first-hand inspection.

However, young Pollak ventured far from his own campus to assert that, generally, the girl in training to become a teacher these days is a combination business woman and movie star.

MISS PRIM PASSES

The old conception of teacher is Miss Prim, a spinster with a vinegar face that stopped the clock in the little red schoolhouse, is, in Pollak's opinion, an outdated picture that should be buried. Instead, he wrote, the modern teachers' college co-ed has brains, charm, personality, grace, glamour, sophistication and appeal.

"She needn't worry about holding up the wall at dances or hooking her fellow man," he said, "for under ordinary circumstances he will hook himself.

BOY, BOY, WHAT GALS!

"She radiates life and youthfulness, and the spark of mischief in her eye attracts the attention of all who know her. She exemplifies grace.

"Her mannerisms are neither stiff nor awkward. She carries herself as pleasingly as a Park ave. deb. Her sophistication is not an act, but a mirror of her true self.

"She looks as well in a bathing suit as in street or formal wear. She has the appeal that goes on cigaret ads and keeps the eyes of the nation constantly admiring."

MISTRIAL DENIED IN KUHN CASE

NEW YORK, Nov. 20 (AP)—Peter L. F. Sabbatino, counsel for Fritz Kuhn, German-American Bund leader, demanded a mistrial today when Judge James G. Wallace excluded the public from Kuhn's trial and rebuked the lawyer for disputing the order.

The motion was denied.

Kuhn is charged with grand larceny of Bund funds.

The order, barring the audience, was understood to have resulted from the judge's annoyance at repeated outbursts of laughter and tittering.

"You have nothing to do with the arrangements here," Judge Wallace snapped when Sabbatino objected. "The courtroom was too crowded, and due to that and other things I won't mention at this time, the general public was excluded. I am in charge here."

Sabbatino said then that he whished to have on the record the number of spectators permitted to remain.

"Go on with the trial," Judge Wallace ordered. "And don't say another word on the subject now."

Sabbatino persisted, then demanded a mistrial.

Officials Here Urge Aid Be Given Poland

The American people should do their utmost to aid the people of partitioned Poland, according to Mayor Tobin, U. S. Re. John W. McCormack and Atty.-Gen. Paul A. Dever, who addressed a mass meeting in Faneuil Hall sponsored by the Polish Relief Committee of Boston.

"We do not want Nazi Germany or Soviet or Communist Russia to win the war," Congressman McCormack declared. "We want them to lose, because not only is their defeat essential to a reconstituted Poland, but also because they are forces intent upon suppressing liberty and freedom and even religion itself.

"Our sympathy is not enough, however; we must do something constructive. We must give Poland material assistance."

America could do this and keep out of war, he added, "because we have a strong navy and a strong air force—yet, it is imperative that we do help the Allies. This was why I voted to repeal the arms embargo."

Mayor Tobin described the conquest of Poland as "probably one of the cruelest pages ever written in the history of the world."

Francois Briere, French consul, said one of France's primary war aims was reparations for injustices done Poland. Several thousand dollars was collected at the meeting for the American Red Cross in Poland, including $100 from Mayor Tobin and Atty.-Gen. Dever and $50 from Briere.

Find Babies Unfed 4 Days

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 20 (AP)—Police broke into a home in response to the complaints of neighbors and found two babies who police said apparently had not eaten for four days.

"There was no heat in the house," Deved added. "The only sleeping material was an old mattress thrown on the floor in a room on the second floor."

The children, a 2½-year-old girl and a 16-months boy, were turned over to a welfare society. Dever quoted the father as saying his wife left him and the children last Wednesday.

The father, who gave his name as James Hannan, 27, and two companions were booked on charges of intoxication.

Boy Held as Police Find Missing Girl

GREENFIELD, Nov. 20—In a startling aftermath of the week-long hunt for 15-year-old Amelia Pluta of Turner's Falls, Roy Crowell, 17, was held in $1000 bail today on serious charges involving the girl.

At the same time, District Court Judge Abner S. McLaud ordered the girl held as a juvenile delinquent.

Found yesterday in a Bernardstown camp, she told state troopers she had run away from home following a quarrel with her mother over her "boy friend."

She told an amazing story of living for a week on 50 cents, while dodging searchers by sleeping in a freight car, a summer camp and an abandoned jail building.

While CCC boys and state police hunted her, the young girl shuttled back and forth between Springfield, Northampton and Greenfield.

She slept one night in a freight car at Springfield, four nights in the abandoned Franklin County jail at Greenfield, before state police surprised her in an abandoned summer camp at Bernardston.

"I ran away because my mother wouldn't let me see my boy friend any more," she said. "I don't like school anyway. So I went to Greenfield with my boy friend on a date. We had a fight and then I thought I would go away forever."

The girl's suede shoes were worn out from walking and her stockings were in shreds. She said she had lived mostly on toast and coffee with her 50 cents. She found a little soup in the summer camp and that helped.

"We had expected to find a dead body," said State Detective Nelligan, adding that the girl apparently was "all right."

3 Youths Seized In Holdup Battle

Three youths, one only 16 years old, were arrested today and booked for assault with intent to rob in connection with an attempted holdup in which a 48-year-old Cambridge storekeeper fought two would-be bandits.

Ignoring the threat of what looked like a revolver, but, according to police, turned out to be a toy gun, Israel Gelerman, 48, and his wife, Esther, 35, put up such a battle that the two youths were glad to escape from the Massachusetts ave. shop.

Police said Manuel Mello, 24, of Portland st., and Eugene Silva, 17, of Hunting st., both Cambridge, had admitted engineering the robbery attempt with a 16-year-old companion.

They were traced, Inspector Joseph O'Connor declared, by means of a torn suede jacket found near the Gelerman store.

Pleading innocent in East Cambridge District Court, Mello and Silva were held in $5000 bail each for hearing Nov. 25.

Oust College Editors in Row

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 20 (AP)—Eleven student editors said today they have been suspended from the University of Pennsylvania humor magazine staff in a dispute over the publication of jokes which faculty members termed risque.

The students said they were removed from the staff when they failed to "produce the person or persons responsible for the jokes."

They said they did not know how the jokes were included among those published.

Roxbury Cop, in Role Of Doctor, Aids Stork

Over in New York they teach the cops the details of emergency midwifery in the Recruit School, but the Boston police, who are taught only first aid, have yet to lose an emergency obstetrical case, and their record was particularly bright today—thanks to another of Boston's "finest".

All was well with Mrs. Mary Hanley, 25, of Bragdon st., Roxbury, and her new-born, seven-pound baby girl, because Patrolman Albert Swift knew what it was all about when he arrived at the Bragdon st. address in the emergency.

A doctor at City Hospital decided that the stork would not visit Mrs. Hanley for some time, so she returned home.

Two hours later her husband, Joseph, 27, called the Roxbury station and in alarmed tones declared that his wife was giving birth to a baby.

Swift and Officer Manuel Davis were dispatched to the Hanley home, where Swift promptly called for blankets, hot water and other accessories.

Davis went out and called through the station house for a doctor. Two physicians responded, only to find that Swift had done all that was necessary.

The stork, bearing the baby girl, had arrived.

F. D. TO LET PUBLIC PASS ON 3D TERM

By GEORGE DURNO

International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20 (INS)—Third term speculation grew apace as a result of President Roosevelt's week-end at Hyde Park but best information was—as he returned briefly to the White House today en route to Warm Springs for Thanksgiving—that the chief executive intended to sit tight and let the American public decide that burning issue for itself.

Badgered on all sides for weeks to declare his intentions about the 1940 nomination, Mr. Roosevelt consistently has parried all questions and ridiculed quite a bit of the printed speculation.

WILL JUST "SAW WOOD"

"I think the President is going to saw wood—watch the European war—and say nothing.

"If there should be a far-reaching popular reaction in favor of a third term he probably would respond to it. Lacking such a call he is prepared to retire to his Hyde Park home on Jan. 20, 1941."

The reference to "watching the European war" obviously called attention to the President's foreign policy, which has proved widely popular among Republicans and conservative Democrats who otherwise strongly oppose the New Deal.

Developments along the Maginot-Siegfried lines, in the submarine-infested Atlantic and in the air during the next six months may well have a marked bearing on the action of the nominating of delegates at next June's Democratic national convention.

TAKES JIBE AT PRESS

Yesterday the President laid the cornerstone of the $350,000 privately-built library which will house ultimately his 6,000,000 political papers.

Smiling at the crowd of unlisted donors which included such political notables as Federal Security Administrator Paul V. McNutt, Mayor Edward J. Kelly of Chicago and Mayor Frank Hague of Jersey City, he expressed hope his papers would be ready for public inspection by the spring of 1941.

Then he added extemporaneously:

"And may I add the expression of the hope to my good friends of the press, so they may have something to write about, that they give due interpretation to my statement that when we open the building I hope it will be a fine day."

Earlier the President had jibed at political writers who wove 1940 implications into his statement last week that he hoped to be present at the final dedication of the Jefferson Memorial in Washington "by January, 1941."

Mr. Roosevelt said he deliberately interpolated this remark at the cornerstone laying to get personal amusement from the reactions of columnists and others.

Seek to Abolish Quincy Stadium Fee

While 15-year-old Joseph Nicholas of Breck st., Milton, fought for his life at Quincy City Hospital today, scores of parents demanded that admission charges at Quincy's new memorial stadium be abolished.

The youth, given a fighting chance after a kidney operation and blood transfusions by three brothers and a companion, was injured when he tumbled from a high fence while watching a football game.

The boy is one of a number who have been hurt while attempting to scale the high fence to escape admission charges, a bone of contention at the stadium for some time.

Among the first to seek revision of the stadium rules was School Committeeman John P Flaven, who called a meeting of the board to abolish such charges.

Later, another brother, Paul, 20, and a friend, Paul McKnight of Milton, also were donors.

Parents, who seek to abolish admission charges, pointed out that the field was given to the city by the Adams family in 1933 as a municipal park.

SLEEP POTION FATAL TO WOMAN ART EDITOR

NEW YORK, Nov. 20 (INS)—Miss Quanita Medbury, 38, magazine art editor and well known in Greenwich Village art life, is dead of an overdose of sleeping powder today.

She telephoned Dr. Augustine Jones, her physician, and informed him in a faint voice of taking the overdose. He immediately notified police, who sent an ambulance from Columbus hospital, then hurried there himself.

There were no suicide notes and an autopsy will be performed today to determine whether death was accidental or suicide.

Dr. Jones said that Miss Medbury had been nervous and melancholy and unable to sleep. He prescribed the sleeping powders. Last September she telephoned him, and told him in almost the same words she used Saturday night, that she had taken too much of the drug. He rushed her to New York Hospital, where she recovered.

2 Harvard Scientists Find Cause of Anemia

By G. B. LAL
International News Service Science Editor

NEW YORK, Nov. 20 (INS)—The discovery of the cause of unusual forms of anemia, associated with heart disease and other conditions, has been announced by two Harvard medical scientists, Drs. William B. Castle and Thomas Hale Ham.

In anemia of this kind the red blood cells are destroyed within the body. Anemia includes all conditions in which there is a poverty of the red blood cells or some key ingredient in them, notably iron.

Eating of liver or drinking liver extracts and of iron preparations aid in the production of new red blood cells or providing them with the iron they need, so that they can carry oxygen around from cell to cell.

But another type of anemia occurs when red blood cells die and until now it was not known why. Prevention and cure of such forms of anemia could not therefore be satisfactorily accomplished.

BLOOD STAGNATION

Drs. Castle and Ham found that red blood cells are destroyed when the blood becomes stagnant in the blood vessels. They call this condition, "intravascular stasis," meaning the congestion of blood in the vessels.

In heart weakness such conditions can arise, the doctors point.

The congestion of blood normally occurs in the spleen and some other organs in babies who have an inborn tendency towards bile obstruction, "congenital jaundice."

In grown up persons, too, similar results are produced by some arsenic preparations and the drug sulfanilamide, now widely used for curing several infectious diseases.

CELLS BECOME ROUND

Some times in blood transfusion, and as the result of serum treatment for pneumonia the same conditions ensue.

Always, according to the Harvard discovery, the red blood cells are destroyed, probably because the congested blood produces some harmful chemicals. These substances make the flat red blood cells round, swelled up and fragile so they burst like soap bubbles.

Edison Proposed For N. J. Governor

MARGATE CITY, N. J., Nov 20 (INS)—Acting Secretary of the Navy Charles Edison was being championed today for nomination as the Democratic candidate for governor of New Jersey in 1940 by U. S. Senator William H. Smathers.

Smathers said he had proposed Edison to both President Roosevelt and Mayor Frank Hague of Jersey City, state democratic leader, as a candidate who, in his opinion, could win for the Democrats.

Arraign Browder On New Charges

NEW YORK, Nov. 20 (INS)—Earl Browder, Communist leader, will be arraigned in Federal court today on a new fraud indictment, handed up by the grand jury last Friday.

Like the indictment returned last month, it contains two counts. It charges him with obtaining a passport here under the name of Albert Henry Richards in 1931, and renewing it in Chicago.

PLYMOUTH, Nov. 20—Albert Estrom, 52, local fisherman, was in critical condition at Jordan Hospital today, after a remarkable escape from drowning, 10 miles off this port.

'Good Will' Tourists Carry Cardinal's Plea

A group of distinguished women from four Latin American countries continued their nation-wide good will tour today after being urged to exert their influence in behalf of peace, during an audience with Cardinal O'Connell at the Cathedral.

The women are touring the United States under auspices of the People's Mandate to End War.

Members of the group, escorted by Mrs. Vincent L. Greene, president and the board of directors of the League of Catholic Women, attended the 10 o'clock mass at the Cathedral, at which Cardinal O'Connell pontificated.

AUDIENCE IN ENGLISH

Following mass the group was received by His Eminence in the Sacristry. For more than half an hour Cardinal O'Connell chatted with the visitors, who were obviously delighted by his knowledge of Latin America and its peoples.

In the group were Senorita Susana Perez Irigoyen, prominent young journalist on the staff of La Nacion of Buenos Aires; Senorita Yvonne Gonzales Rincones, daughter of the former Minister of Education of Venezuela; Senora Angela Acuna de Chacon, prominent lawyer and author, who has taken a leading part in organizing the school system of Costa Rica, and Senorita Mercedes Guerra of Havana, Cuba, secretary to her father, Dr. Ramiro Guerra, distinguished Cuban scholar and historian.

Although the Cardinal speaks many languages, including Spanish, the audience was conducted in English, in which all the visitors were able to converse satisfactorily.

At the conclusion of the interview the Cardinal bestowed his blessing upon the group, with his best wishes for the success of their mission in behalf of peace and good will.

CULTURED GROUP

"It was a most cordial meeting," the Cardinal said, "I recognized at once that the group represents the finest type of Catholic women of Latin America—highly educated and cultured ladies trained in the best schools of Europe and South America.

"They gave every evidence of being an excellent medium to widen our knowledge of their countries here in the North where much understanding is needed because there has not been enough contact in the past between us and the Latin-American countries represented by these distinguished ladies."

From the Cathedral the tourists went to the headquarters of the League of Catholic Women in Arlington st. where they were luncheon guests, later leaving for a tour of historical points of interest, including Concord and Lexington.

In the afternoon the Latin American visitors were guests at tea at the castle of Count Julian de Cordova in Lincoln and last evening were given a farewell buffet supper by Mrs. Raymond B. Cox at the Algonquin Club.

Youth Faces Court In 'Fly' Burglaries

A nimble-footed Chelsea youth of 21, who allegedly described to police how he raised the business of petty burglaries almost to the level of an art, faced Chelsea court today charged with staging 20 breaks.

He was David Glassman of Willow st, Chelsea, who police said performed tight-rope acts on waterspouts, hopped from roof to roof and clambered like a human fly to make way into homes.

So daring were his forays, it was charged, that he included the Highland st home of Patrolman Frank Twombly among his adventures. Frequently he roamed the upstairs of residences, pilfering from pocketbooks and bureaus, when members of the families were in adjoining rooms, police claimed.

Glassman was taken into custody near Bellingham sq by officers who said they saw him several times in a neighborhood where breaks were reported.

Later, he was alleged to have made a complete confession of his activities—of swinging like Tarzan to reach a boudoir window at one house, of escaping from officers via roofs after an earlier break, and of roaming victims' homes calmly while staging thefts.

Meanwhile, Boston police were searching for a youth who entered a Roxbury restaurant, held up Veronica Gulleszpie of St. Botolph st., Back Bay, the cashier, and escaped with $75. He demanded the cash by means of a note, police said.

Truck Club Head Bitter at Ickes

Secretary of the Interior Harold Ickes is a potential destroyer of private property, according to a statement issued by Eli C. Benway, manager of the Motor Truck Club of Massachusetts, who replied to the recent talk by the secretary in which Mr. Ickes was quoted as saying:

"The lord of the highway is the truck driver and I have promised some day to give myself the pleasure of driving down a truck infested road with the biggest armored tank I can find and dumping these pests from the road."

"Boston After Dark," by George Holland, appears every day in the Boston American.

GOODWIN WARNS OF TOLL RISE

Fresh warnings were issued today by Motor Vehicle Registrar Frank A. Goodwin against careless driving, especially at night, after seven more lives were claimed in New England auto accidents, including Dr. Sumner Mead Roberts, noted bone specialist.

Dr. Roberts died instantly in a crash near Hyannis, after he had driven to the Cape Cod Hospital to assist a patient injured in an auto mishap.

Other crash victims included Mrs. Bridge Lynch, 59, of Milton street, Dorchester; Mortimer E. Howard, 59, Milford; William Dowling, 50, of Phippsburg, Me.; Stephen Beebe, 26, of West Farms, N. Y., killed in Darien, Conn.; Samuel Simon, 16, of Pawtucket, R. I.; and an unidentified man of 60, struck and killed in Providence.

A collision of cars driven by Dr. Roberts and, according to police, Dr. Harry Sobel of Hyannis on Route 132 caused the death of the Boston specialist.

Dr. Roberts' car tipped over on its side and then turned upside down. Dr. Roberts was caught and killed under it. Dr. Sobel was treated at Cape Cod Hospital and then allowed to go home.

Only a week ago Dr. Roberts created considerable discussion in medical and physical culture circles by severely criticizing setting-up exercises, in a talk before the New England Society of Physical Medicine at the Hotel Kenmore.

Dr. Roberts, son of Mr. and Mrs. Odin Roberts of Lime st, Boston, was married in Christmas week of 1929 to Elizabeth, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick S. Converse of Westwood, in a society bridal in St. Paul's Church, Dedham.

blamed the losses of the ships, including the Simon Bolivar, on German mines.

(In Berlin the German high command stated that careful investigation of the Simon Bolivar's position and other circumstances of its destruction proved it was impossible that a German mine sank the Netherlands liner.)

LIST 2065 DEAD

The sinkings raised the total to nine destroyed to nearly 600,000. Not including stores missing, the dead are estimated at 2065.

Vessels lost by each nation are Great Britain 7, Germany 14, France 7. Total 51. Neutrals: Norway 11, Sweden 8, Finland 6, Greece and Holland 5 each, Lithuania 3, Denmark and Russia 2 each, Belgium, Rumania, Italy and Yugoslavia 1 each. Total 67.

Other latest vessels to go down after striking mines were:

VICTIM OF MINES

The 6731-ton Yugoslavian freighter Carcia Milica, registered at Dobrovnik.

Trawler Wigmore, British, off English coast, crew of 16 lost.

Sixty-six survivors were picked up by British vessels and taken to English ports, many suffering from injuries and exposure. Loss of the Grazia marked the first sinking of an Italian ship in the war.

The Grazia went down seven miles off the eastern English coast with a reported loss of 21 lives. Five crew members were killed by the explosion and 16 others were missing and believed dead.

RESCUE 29 SURVIVORS

Seven members of the B. O. Borjesson's crew also were missing while 15 others were picked up by fishing trawlers after clinging to a raft for three hours.

No loss of life was reported aboard the Blackhill.

Twenty-nine of the Grazia's survivors were rescued by British fishermen who rowed out in a large lifeboat. No details of the sinking of the Carcia Milica were given in an admiralty announcement.

Nazi Germany has lost "the first phase" of submarine warfare and now is resorting to "indiscriminate" mine-laying as an alternative, high British naval authorities charged.

SAY MANY SUBS LOST

While authorities laid plans for a major campaign to clear the English Channel and adjacent waters of floating mines, official quarters claimed that at least one quarter and perhaps one half of Germany's submarines had failed to return to their bases.

"The U-boats have been defeated by torpedo and gun action," a naval spokesman said.

"Therefore, the Germans are now resorting to indiscriminate mine-laying as an even more brutal method of warfare.

U-BOAT DESTRUCTION

"At least two and sometimes four U-boats are being lost weekly," the spokesman continued. "This is telling severely on the Germans.

"The present German mine-laying campaign is symptomatic of German desperation. The mining is undoubtedly quite indiscriminate, in utter disregard of international law, and is apparently increasing as the nights in the North sea become longer.

"There is no shadow of excuse for sinking any ship, belligerent or neutral, without putting the passengers and crew to safety.

"The sole excuse given by the German propaganda ministry is that we are defensively arming merchantmen. But the right to arm merchant ships for defense has been recognized everywhere, including the German prize court in 1914."

Tomorrow will mark the 21st anniversary of the surrender of the German fleet in the last war.

3 Dutch Liners Bar Passengers

LISBON, Portugal, Nov. 20 (AP)—Passengers on three Netherlands liners have been ordered to disembark here, it was disclosed today, rather than risk the dangers of the mine-laden North sea.

The ships, the Oranje, the Jan Pieterszoon Coen and the Johan De Witt, carried approximately 100 passengers bound for northern Europe. The vessels reached Portugal last week.

Germans Deny Blame For Mine Sinkings

BERLIN, Nov. 20 (INS)—The German admiralty vehemently denied today that German mines were responsible for the sinkings of eight vessels off the east coast of England over the week-end.

Admiralty officials also pointed out that the English contention that German submarines sowed the mines was scarcely credible. They stated that submarines technically are unable to lay mines. If they could do so, the German submarines would choose British naval harbors for such activities.

In addition, it was asserted, the heavy westerly winds prevailing for the past ten days would not have permitted German mines to drift towards the English coast.

The admiralty expressed the opinion that the British were laying mines in the path of neutral vessels to compel them to accept British convoys, and that the British fear their harbors are too vulnerable to German attacks.

FLOODS SLOW WAR ON WEST

PARIS, Nov. 20 (AP) Germans continued widespread scouting flights over France today, while the flooded Rhine and other border rivers forced suspension of local operations along the Western Front.

Military sources said the Germans could be seen erecting dikes on the other side of the Rhine and abandoning some small outlying defense posts which were flooded.

Scouting flights caused alert signals this morning in widely separated points in France.

The general staff's morning communique said merely, "nothing important to report during the night." Earlier, however, military sources said the French had fought off German patrols near Blies, killing six Nazis and capturing one.

(British War Secretary Leslie Hore-Belisha, touring the front yesterday, expressed satisfaction with the general situation and said, "Britain is comfortably winning this war."

("It is the type of war we do best—just digging in and sitting tight," he said.)

Summing up the war at sea during the past month, a French communique last night estimated German shipping captured by French patrols "certainly exceeded by several thousands tons the tonnage of French shipping lost because of the enemy."

Storms Prevent Fighting Along Western Front

BERLIN, Nov. 20 (AP)—Violent storms kept German troops on the Western Front busy yesterday removing uprooted trees, DNB, official news agency, reported today.

The weather prevented German reconnaissance flights, but planes already in the air returned safely, DNB said in elucidating today's high command communique, which stated simply "no special events" yesterday.

Regarding mercantile sea warfare the report stated units of the German navy continued "to be busy in the Baltic, the North sea and in all oceans."

Mother of Soldier to Aid Anti-War Drive

A Maine mother, one of whose two sons, at 18, is serving with the army in Hawaii, and whose husband served in the World War, today joined the National Legion of Mothers of America which seeks to keep the United States out of Europe's war.

With her pledge card, Mrs. Vivian H. Sterling of Post rd., Kittery, Me., sent this letter:

"I have two sons 15 and 18 years of age. My elder son is in the army now, stationed in Hawaii. God knows I wouldn't want him to fight on foreign shores. My husband was in the World War and what did he get out of it? Nothing.

"My sons will shed their last drop of blood for America, but not one drop for an alien power.

"I am a member of the American Legion Auxiliary, and also a county officer of the La Boutique des Nuit Chapeaux et Quarante Femmes 8-40. So you see I am in favor of keeping American soldiers on American soil. I am sure there are many mothers here who will sign Pledge cards to keep their sons in America.

"Three cheers for the National Legion of Mothers of America! May their number increase many times over."

The Legion's battle cry "America First!" spurred organizers to redoubled efforts today with the opening of the second month of the drive. That the mothers, in their anti-war crusade, were becoming a mighty force, was shown by reports pouring in from all sections of the country.

The entire membership of the old son, whose father was a doughboy, you can understand how keenly I watch the trend of events. In recent years I've often wished for an opportunity to express for publication many of my views of current events and emotions.

"May I please submit to you a thought fit for the occasion, which I have entered in my diary this day? It reads: 'Not since that first Thanksgiving have the years produced a generation with so great a debt of gratitude to our Heavenly Father, as we Americans owe today.

"Instead of questioning the desirability of a change of date for this all-American holiday, I suggest that we use our President's choice as the date to start a week of prayer of gratefulness to God for our blessings. Then, at the close of our week of prayer, the last Thursday of the month, would bring the feast.

"And with the coming holy holiday, commemorating the birth of Our Saviour, let us bear in mind that, due to a kind fate, we are favored to be a member of this great American family—where we are taught, and free to give allegiance to a higher power and where the Star of Bethlehem still has a real significance."

She closed her letter with the words, "God bless you in this crusade for RIGHT."

ANSWER TO PRAYERS

Mrs. Raefield's desire to give expression to such fine thoughts, for which she is to be commended, marks many of the letters from mothers who say that the Legion of Mothers and its aims seem to have come as an answer to their prayers.

1—To oppose the sending of American troops to fight on foreign soil.

2—To support a program of adequate national defense.

3—To combat all "isms" whose object is the destruction of the American form of government.

The organization is open to all women, married and unmarried, who are American citizens. No dues are demanded. Mail pledge cards promptly to Box 228, Boston, Mass.

Reds-Japs See Agreement Near

MOSCOW, Nov. 20 (AP) Soviet Russian officials spurred progress today in negotiations to improve relations with Japan, while the press continued to attack Finland for "increasing preparations for war."

TASS, official Soviet news agency, announced agreement had been reached on the "composition and functions" of a mixed commission to establish a boundary between Sovietized Outer Mongolia and Japanese-protected Manchukuo.

The commission, which will attempt to settle frontier problems left unsolved when the two countries concluded a truce Sept. 15 after more than four months of border fighting, will meet soon at Chita, Siberia, TASS said.

Nazis Segregate All Warsaw Jews

BERLIN, Nov. 20 (INS)—The Nazi governor of Warsaw has issued orders to barricade the Jewish section of Warsaw in order to effect complete separation of the former Polish capital's huge Jewish population from the rest of the city.

A DNB dispatch from Cracow said the action was taken because of alleged profiteering by the Jewish residents. Establishment of a Jewish ghetto by the Nazi authorities, it was announced, will be enforced by armed German troops.

Hacha Escapes Czech Bullets

LONDON, Nov. 20 (INS)—Emil Hacha, the Czechoslovak premier who was forced to turn his country over to advancing Nazi armies, was shot at last Friday by young Czech workmen, the Daily Herald reported in a dispatch from Zagreb, Yugoslavia.

The newspaper said the would-be assassins missed their mark and shot two of Hacha's gestapo (Nazi secret police) bodyguards. Hacha probably is the most unpopular man in Prague, according to the Daily Herald.

German Revolt Peril Grows

Britains Claim 50,000 Czechs Jailed

By J. C. OESTREICHER

International News Service Foreign Editor

Declaration of martial law over the German protectorates of Bohemia and Moravia, following discovery of an insurrectionary student movement in Prague, demonstrates far better than all the claims of Allied propagandists that all is not as it should be within the boundaries of the Greater Reich.

It is difficult to state just how widespread dissension has become. British and French propaganda is naturally open to suspicion. A British news agency reported today that no fewer than 50,000 have been arrested through the former Czechoslovak republic. The Nazis place the number at 1200.

But regardless of this discrepancy, there is no doubt that an anti-Nazi movement is afoot. Or, rather, that dissension long existing beneath the surface is now cropping out here and there in the Reich—particularly in the alien lands which Adolf Hitler placed by force of arms beneath the Nazi swastika.

REVOLT AGAINST WAR

Time alone can tell whether the movement is serious enough to endanger the Hitler regime, or whether unrest in Bohemia, Moravia and elsewhere accounts in some measure at least for Germany's failure to open hostilities on the Western Front.

One thing is highly probable: the movement, serious or trivial as it may be, is in all likelihood directed less against Hitler than against the war itself.

Otto Strasser, a former Nazist, now in exile and acknowledged leader of anti-Hitler agitation from abroad, has been quoted as saying that any serious revolutionary movement in Germany cannot be looked for until the spring of 1940 at the earliest. He believes that by that time Germany will have felt the pinch of war hardships and perhaps a serious military setback.

It was Strasser who admitted some time ago that despite all foreign assertions to the contrary, the anti-Nazi organization within Germany itself was an almost inconsequential factor.

ONLY 10,000 REBELS

He estimated that members of the so-called "German Freedom Party"—the organization which surreptitiously distributes revolutionary propaganda by leaflets and over the radio—numbered not more than 10,000 men and women among the whole 60,000,000 population of the Reich itself.

The 25,000,000 added to Germany's inhabitants by the absorption of Austria, Czechoslovakia and Poland doubtless brought additional dissidents within the Reich's boundaries but these have not had time to ally themselves with the secret organization of 10,000 pledged to destruction of Nazism and all that it implies.

The Germans themselves have made no secret of the fact that revolutionaries have tough going in the Reich. The Gestapo has long had the situation well in hand and now, if reports can be believed, there is a "super-Gestapo" consisting of a handful of tried and true old Nazis who have been appointed to spy on the activities of the original Gestapo itself.

HUNT PLOT CLUES

Yet the Hitler regime has found it necessary to impose the death penalty on anyone caught listening to broadcasts of the "Freedom party," and the stamps are still steamed off every 10th letter to make sure that no one is carrying on a subversive movement by means of tiny messages written in the upper right-hand corner of an envelope and then covered over with a portrait of the late Field Marshal Paul von Hindenburg.

Reports persist that during the nightly blackouts in Berlin and elsewhere, a pedestrian will feel himself jostled mysteriously and discover upon his arrival home that someone has stuffed a piece of anti-Hitler propaganda in his pocket. Dispatches tell of coins being dropped in the street, bearing on their obverse side some treasonable slogan. The coins, of course, are dropped by the pickers-up like hot potatoes—a factor that presumably keeps them in constant circulation until confiscated by some alert policeman.

These are all little things. The Munich explosion was a big one, and still awaits explanation.

WHAT YOU SHOULD KNOW ABOUT FACE PIMPLES

These disfiguring spots affecting the outer or surface layer of the skin often result from a temporary disturbance, or merely from incorrect cleansing.

You can relieve the itchy, burning soreness and help your skin by using an ointment whose medication stays in active contact with the pimply spots. Apply it every night and leave it on all night. It does a world of good.

For nearly 45 years people have used Resinol Ointment to fill this need. It soothes the irritated oil ducts where many surface pimples start, and aids healing. Carefully cleansing the skin with Resinol Soap helps to quicken the pleasing results. Its gently active lather is refreshing and it rinses easily.

Buy a jar of Resinol Ointment and cake of Resinol Soap from any druggist. For free sample, write Resinol, Dept. 89, Baltimore, Md.

HENRY — That Does It!

Congress May Seek Powers to Convene

By GEORGE ROTHWELL BROWN
Special to the Boston Evening American

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20—By side-stepping the red hot poker of a transfer of American ships to registry under the Panama flag Mr. Roosevelt appears also to have prevented a serious break with Secretary Hull, and to have avoided a sharp clash with Congress.

The controversy also created an interesting constitutional problem. Senator Van Nuys, of Indiana, said that if the transfer went through he would start a movement to have Congress reconvene at once.

Then he realized there is no constitutional method under which Congress may convene itself. Congress may adjourn to a stipulated day, but once having adjourned sine die, only the President may call it in session prior to the date for its next meeting as fixed by law.

By an odd coincidence, Representative Hancock, of New York, late in October, proposed an amendment to the constitution, expressly granting to Congress "the power to provide by law for convening in extra or special session."

Suppose, for example, that the war situation should become so serious, and the danger of America being drawn into it should become so acute, that in the opinion of a majority of Senate and House, and in the opinion of the Vice-President and the Speaker, Congress should be called in special session, and suppose that the President didn't want Congress on his hands?

Maybe Senator Van Nuys and Mr. Hancock have raised a vital question.

This writer is of the opinion that Congress may by law provide the mechanism whereby it could be called into special session by its own officers.

After stating the manifold powers of Congress, the concluding paragraph of Section 8, Article I of the Constitution reads as follows:

"To make all laws which shall be necessary and proper for carrying into execution the foregoing powers, and all other powers vested by this Constitution in the Government of the United States, or in any department or officer thereof."

It may be argued, I believe, that under this broad grant Congress has the power to enact a law providing that upon petition of a majority of the two Houses the President of the Senate, and the Speaker of the House, shall call the Congress into extraordinary session.

18 Czechs Shot? Plot on Hacha

LONDON, Nov. 20 (INS)—An attempt on the life of Dr. Emil Hacha, president of the Bohemian-Moravian protectorate; use of artillery against rioting Czech workmen, and the execution or wounding of at least 30 Czech students were alleged today by the London Daily Herald, labor organ.

A dispatch from Zagreb, Jugoslavia, said 18 Czech students were lined up against the wall of their classroom in Prague University and shot down, their bodies left propped against the wall as an example to schoolmates.

The university was captured by Nazi storm troopers in furious fighting, the dispatch said, Czech students fighting them off by hurling desks and other objects, including busts of Hitler.

2 Nazi Liners Arm as Raiders

LONDON, Nov. 20 (INS)—The German liner Windhuk has been refitted as an armed commerce raider and now is engaged in hunting down allied commerce off the west coast of Africa, according to an Exchange Telegraph dispatch today from Capetown quoting German sources.

The Windhuk, a passenger liner of 16,662 tons, and the liner Adolph Woermann, 5577 tons, were reported to have sailed unobtrusively from the port of Lobito, Angola, Saturday night. Whether the Woermann also was armed for commerce raiding was not revealed.

Seamen from five German ships tied up in Lobito harbor supplied the crew of the Windhuk, which is believed to be disguised as a British ship.

Dutch Guns Kill Nazi War Flier

ROERMOND, The Netherlands, Nov. 20 (AP)—A German military plane apparently disabled by Netherlands anti-aircraft guns crashed in a meadow near here today, killing the pilot, the only occupant.

This was the third incident in as many days in which German aircraft flying over Netherlands territory have been fired on.

A communique from the Hague said the aircraft flew low over Roermond with the motors shut off before attempting to land.

Reports from Berlin indicated that one German flier was injured yesterday when he exchanged fire with Netherlands craft over Schiermonnikoog island, off the northern coast. The German plane sped away.

A similar encounter occurred Saturday when two German flying boats appeared. Both headed back toward Germany apparently undamaged.

Armstrong Tells All in Dowd Case

under James M. Curley when he was mayor.

He resigned from his job after a difference of opinion with his superior in 1925. He had risen to his post after being secretary to Mayor John F. Fitzgerald.

He is married and lives in Lancaster st., West Roxbury.

He was at one time a vice-president of a Beacon st. building supply company, and shortly after his resignation from the city post operated in Florida real estate.

He was a very close friend of Dowd during the latter's many years at City Hall.

FOUR MEN INDICTED

At one time he was the target of criticism by the Boston Finance Commission, which questioned certain contracts he had approved for city supplies.

With Armstrong, Rock was today bracketed with Frank C. Dolan, Jamaica Plain contractor, and Charles A. Hussey, employe in the city public works department, as members of a ring of solicitors who are alleged to have collected sums of money ranging from $100 to $2500.

The grand jury continued hearing evidence after returning the Rock indictment.

ALL EVIDENCE GUARDED

Four members of the Charles st. jail office staff and 16 jail officers were summoned to the courthouse and questioned about conditions during the 13 months' reign of Dowd as sheriff.

The report spread about the city that Dowd was preparing to return here at once to fight any charges made against him as the district attorney announced he would ask the jury to indict the ex-law enforcement officer.

Photostatic copies of all evidence so far uncovered in the investigation and original copies have been placed in vaults by the district attorney's attaches as the result of information received that attempts were made to have witnesses change their stories.

All files in the office are under lock and key.

The new sheriff, Frederick R. Sullivan, meanwhile was making a careful survey of conditions at the jail and courthouse as he eliminated certain practices as existed under the Dowd regime.

One of his subordinates, questioned by Sullivan, said:

"I took orders and enforced them. It wasn't up to me to tell my superior how to run the job, much as I disliked certain methods. I had to do what I was told or lose my job."

Sullivan said that the only reserve food supplies he found as he took office consisted of three bags of onions.

Cuba's Strong Man Defeated at Polls

HAVANA, Cuba, Nov. 20 (AP)—Parties opposed to the present regime headed by Cuba's strong man, Col Fulgencio Batista, apparently won a majority in the constituent Assembly, incomplete returns indicated today.

With 300 precincts uncounted, results of the recent election showed opposition parties had elected 40 Assembly delegates and the government parties 35.

Broken Main Floods Andrew Sq. Area

Two stores were flooded and the pavement in Andrew sq., South Boston were undermined today when a 24-inch watermain burst.

Police Radio Dispatcher Michael J. Powers ordered four police cars to the scene and for nearly an hour traffic circled the flooded area. The water supply to hundreds of homes, including buildings in Old Harbor Village, was affected.

CULTURE, THAT'S WHAT

LOUISVILLE, Ky., (AP)—The board of trustees of the Louisville Library has taken under advisement the question of placing comic magazines in a branch library, but it's no funny matter. Hundreds of requests for comics led to a proposal that the magazines be installed as an experimental project.

Hub Postal Force Works Thursday

Despite President Roosevelt's proclamation setting Thanksgiving a week ahead, Uncle Sam's postal business in Boston will function as usual on the President's holiday, it was announced today.

Postmaster Peter F. Tague declared that since Nov. 23 is not being observed as a local holiday, the main postoffice and all its branches in Boston will function on their regular weekday schedules.

At the same time, mail carriers will make their regular rounds in a full weekday schedule of deliveries and collections, he added.

Rural free delivery carriers, however, will take the day off, Tague said.

Holds 'Company Union' Aid Unfair

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20 (AP)—The United States Court of Appeals ruled today that it was an unfair labor practice for minor supervisory employes to aid the union preferred by the company.

It upheld the Labor Relations Board, which had declined to sanction an FL machinists' contract on the grounds that the employer through minor supervisory employes, assisted in organizing toolroom workers. The employer was the Serrick Corp. of Ohio, at Muncie, Ind.

The labor board had ordered the firm to drop ist A. F. of L. toolroom contract and deal with CIO's United Auto Workers. The Muncie plant makes automobile moldings, bolts, screws and other articles.

Timilty Bucks Up Detectives

Police Comr. Timilty today called members of the headquarters detective bureau to his office one by one for a general "buck up" talk.

The commissioner complained of too few arrests, failure to report for the lineup and general laxness.

"You men are not being serious about your work here," he told the detectives. "There's too much punning and joking where there should be an atmosphere of attention to duty."

The commissioner also declared that the stations have been lax about sending in prisoners for the headquarters lineup since the elimination of the special service squad.

FIRING SQUAD AT DAWN

by PAUL WHELTON

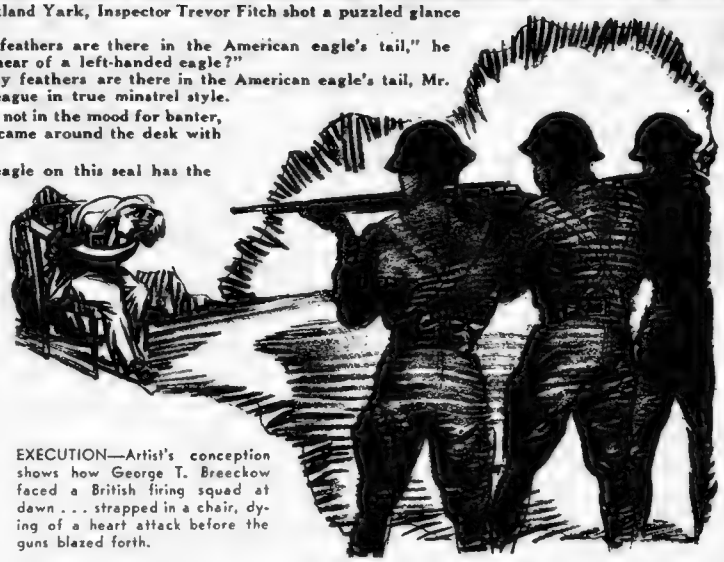
ACROSS the desk in Scotland Yark, Inspector Trevor Fitch shot a puzzled glance at his colleague.

"I say, how many feathers are there in the American eagle's tail," he asked, "and did you ever hear of a left-handed eagle?"

"Well, now, how many feathers are there in the American eagle's tail, Mr. Fitch?" countered his colleague in true minstrel style.

But Inspector Fitch was not in the mood for banter, footlight or otherwise. He came around the desk with the passport in his hand

"See," he said, "the eagle on this seal has the left claw backward and there are only eight feathers in his tail I may be wrong, but I think there should be nine. If that's so, we've bally well cinched them."



EXECUTION—Artist's conception shows how George T. Breeckow faced a British firing squad at dawn . . . strapped in a chair, dying of a heart attack before the guns blazed forth.

Thus, through an outraged eagle on the seal of a faked American passport in the name of Reginald Rowland, New York city, were George T. Breeckow and Elizabeth Wertheim, spies in the pay of Imperial Germany, finally trapped in 1915.

Gibbering and shaking, almost on the point of collapse, the scholarly Breeckow, henpecked paramour of an ex-demi-mondaine, was subsequently tied in the death chair of London Tower—to die of heart failure even as the firing squad were pressing the triggers.

And the cocotte who had been his companion in espionage went to a cell, dying in the Aylesbury Convict Prison at Broadmoor less than a decade later.

In another sphere, or if there had not been a war, George Breeckow might have turned out to be a successful and pretty nice chap.

Rigged with a fore-and-aft and a curving pipe, he might well have been a perfect Sherlock Holmes, at least in the dramatic conception, outwitting on the boards the duffers of Scotland Yard, as he certainly failed to outwit them in life

One of those long-fingered, thin-faced individuals so common on concert platform, he could almost, as the expression goes, make a piano talk—and in this there was little wonder, for his father was a pianoforte tuner and repairer, as well as a musician, and the son had virtually been raised with the melody boxes.

AFTER his arrest, the West End London fun-set recalled with regret the many times he had been the life of the party—with the party usually lasting until long after the dawn.

Breeckow was born in Stettin, Germany, in 1884. Mrs. Wertheim was born in Berlin some few years after Breeckow's birth date, but the two were not to meet until the fateful year of 1915.

Apprenticed in the piano tuning and repairing before he was in his 'teens, Georg was skilled in these lines and had become an excellent player in 1908 when he went to America, with the idea of starting in business for himself

As a preliminary, he took out his first naturalization papers, but he never completed the naturalization and therefore was never a full American citizen. Nevertheless, he learned to talk English with a full American accent.

It is known now that long before the war, Breeckow—who apparently never could say no to man or woman — had been inveigled by a gang of German Secret Service agents in America and was a small part of the spy ring here.

He was doing all right in New York and had made many friends, for whom also he was the life of many parties, when the war began and George was told he had been selected to undertake espionage in Great Britain.

Then he was provided with a bogus American passport — bungled by some careless artist and engraver as to the eagle on the seal — and left Holland for England in the character of Reginald Rowland, representative of the Norton R. Smith Co., piano manufacturers, of New York city.

Just why it was thought a piano company might have any hope of selling pianos to English households, in those troubled war years when nearly every family was wearing black bands, is difficult to understand.

At any rate, "Reginald Rowland" landed safely in England and one of his first moves was to seek out a Lizzie Wertheim, whose name had been furnished him as that of an accomplice to team with him.

NO doubt Elizabeth Wertheim was just as pleased as her new acquaintance, for her husband, it subsequently became known from the lips of that harassed gentleman himself, had left her not long since.

His chief reason had been that Elizabeth was over-generous with her favors, but not to him.

Breeckow met Elizabeth Wertheim at an address in the neighborhood of West Kensington, and with her beauty and vivacity, and his apparently unlimited supply of Imperial Germany's money in English pounds, they cut quite a swath in London for a time.

Their burst of gaiety lasted for days and they stayed together at the best of hotels, dined at the most expensive restaurants in Picadilly Circus and Regent st., hired horses of a morning and took the air in Rotten Row along with the scions of aristocracy.

Such items of gossip which might interest the home office in Berlin they sent back from London, using the inevitable "invisible ink" between the lines of letters harmless enough on their face.

Now the second step in their program came, and it was arranged between them that Elizabeth should do the actual spying around the countryside and Breeckow would remain in London, receiving her reports—interior mail was not censored—and he would forward the information to Rotterdam, using lemon juice, ammonia or some other medium employed for invisible writing.

Not a bad one, certainly, this plan, for who was to suspect a well-dressed woman, apparently of British nationality and certainly speaking perfect English, of being interested in naval matters.

Patronizing the best hotels, she made herself more than agreeable to lonely naval officers with whom she came in contact, and if sometimes they carelessly told her things she should not have heard—what reason had they to suspect that such information shortly would be on its way to Germany!

ELIZABETH appears to have been faithful in her regular reports and to have picked up much information in the witchhours of night, for Postal Censorship began to lift out letters from London to Rotterdam—and wonder "who now."

After one of these trips out of town, the comely Elizabeth returned to London, from where she and Breeckow toured to Southsea and Portsmouth, spies by day and lovers after working hours.

In splendid style they lived and they took long motor rides along the coast each day. If Postal Censorship and Scotland Yards Special Branch were puzzled over the new starting point of the familiar letters to Rotterdam they did not show it.

Some evenings at the hotel there were merry times and refreshing drinks and Breeckow played the piano. If, for various periods, the vivacious Elizabeth should disappear with one of the many uniformed men on leave this apparently did nor disturb George, although he may have played in a bit faster tempo while absorbing another drink.

Meanwhile, however, Inspector Trevor Fitch was busy doing things and, as his agents reported to him on the letters intercepted and others forged and substituted, he decided that a little more rope given the couple certainly could do England no more harm, even if it did harm the principals

After the South Coast trip they returned to London, and as Elizabeth prepared to take a swing again into Scotland, Breeckow became concerned over the extravagant tastes she was acquiring.

He attempted to reason with her and have her shave on expenses, but Elizabeth's palate had become too accustomed to high living and she insisted it was necessary to maintain her dignity and the "front."

To Glasgow went Elizabeth, and after scraping acquaintance with various military personages in the vicinity of the important Maryhill Barracks, she moved on to Edinburgh.

HERE, for six weeks, she lived another idyll, with naval officers as her quarry, and when not in their company she took long motor rides to Barry and Carnoustie, centers of many military activities.

During all this time she was constantly writing to Breeckow, or "Rowland," and he was painstakingly—he did not know it was Irvin—transposing her information into code and with invisible ink, and mailing the whole to Rotterdam, which it never reached in its designed form.

Finally Postal Censorship intercepted a letter to Rotterdam from Breeckow, apparently in answer to one jacking him up for too heavy expenditures.

In his letter, between the lines, of course, Breeckow complained bitterly that he could do nothing with Elizabeth to stop her spending; that he had chided her several times but that she merely had laughed at him.

Fearing that this might be the hint of a breaking point, Inspector Fitch, with another officer, called at Breeckow's hotel and found him in the lobby.

The detective explained the nature of his call to the startled piano player and asked to be taken up to the room.

Here an exhaustive search was made for incriminating articles, but nothing was found.

At that time Elizabeth was on her way back from Scotland, and word was left at the desk for her that Breeckow would be out of town for a few days and for her to leave her address if she did not check in at the hotel.

At Scotland Yard, Breeckow was a picture of injured innocence, but as he grew excited his true nature exerted itself and even the veneer of his American accent dropped from his speech and the Teuton gutterals began to work through.

They took specimens of his handwriting, showed him some of the intercepted letters and matched the writing. They brought in the results of chemical analysis made on a box with a talcum powder label. It was a material which, dissolved in water, produced ink for invisible writing.

Then they produced his pseudo-American passport and showed him the "left-handed eagle" and showed him that it had but eight tail feathers instead of the nine on the true seal.

BURSTING into tears, Breeckow asked what all this meant. Would he be put to death? His face buried in tear-wet hands he begged for mercy, blaming the woman; pleaded for clemency for the sake of his aged mother.

Meanwhile Elizabeth had returned and had gone to stay in the flat of a woman friend in the West End of London. There the imperturbable Fitch found her—and discovered that she was quite of another stamp from her boy friend in the spy business.

"How dare you come to this lady's house at this time of the night and demand that I accompany you to Scotland Yard?" she flared at the Inspector.

"Madam, there's a war on," replied the patient Fitch. "Besides—you must come with me."

She was just as vehement at Scotland Yard—at first—and denied that her association with Breeckow was for the purpose of espionage. Couldn't a lady have a good time if she wished? She admitted nothing.

Meanwhile, locked in a cell and thinking things over, Breeckow was gradually coming apart mentally.

Now, after days in the cell, the full import of his predicament swept over him and his one thought was to save himself. He sent for the governor of the prison and asked for paper and writing materials, stating he wished to make a complete confession.

It was a voluminous and nauseating document for it he threw all blame on the woman, who, he said, had complete mastery over him.

She became enraged when informed of this and made a confession, charging that she had been entirely in his power.

Thus sweetly they went to trial at the Old Bailey on Sept. 20, 1915, before three judges, Mrs. Wertheim having a civil court privilege as a British citizen through her marriage.

Breeckow—the story book name of "Reginald Rowland" discarded forever—was a pitiful spectacle, near collapse, in the dock as he heard himself sentenced to the firing squad.

Elizabeth received a sentence of 10 years' penal servitude, one she was not to live out.

IN the memory of those compelled by duty to witness them, the last scenes in Breeckow's life probably still exist.

The spy, during the five weeks which elapsed between his condemnation and his death on Oct. 26 in the Tower of London, broke down completely and passed the time in a state of apathetic existance which might have interested a psychologist but which only disgusted the more hardened military officials entrusted with his care

With limbs like rubber and his body shaking as if with ague, he was led out to the miniature rifle range in the tower on the morning of the execution date.

Earlier he had requested that a lady's silk handkerchief, evidently a relic of some past love affair, be used to cover his eyes in place of the usual bandage.

But after he had been seated in the chair there was considerable difficulty with the handkerchief. It was too small to reach around, either for pinning or knotting, stretch it though the military would.

Finally it was necessary to put on the regular bandage and to this the handkerchief was pinned, as far as it would reach.

By now Breeckow was almost epileptic in his mounting fright and as the ropes were being tied it was difficult to keep him in the chair, out of which he was literally shaking.

Then the spy was tied, however, and the guards, hastily ripping open the shirt and baring the breast—the necessity for this gesture was always a bit uncertain—stepped back.

The sergeant-major in charge of the firing squad at the east end of the range answered that he was ready, and at the order the rifles came to aim.

Then, in the split second between the drop of the assistant provost-marshal's cane and the crash of the rifles, those on the range saw with horror that the spy in the chair had made one last convulsive leap upward—then had sagged back, his head on his bared breast.

At the inquest it was revealed that the spy had died of heart failure—literally frightened to death—in the instant before the bullets ripped through his body.

Address _____

WHEN CONGRESS CONVENES next January there will come before it a bill, introduced into the Senate at the first session of the Seventy-Sixth Congress by Senator Lee, of Oklahoma, and favorably reported by the Committee on Military Affairs, that proposes nothing less, in case of war, than to seize by FORCE a great proportion of the privately earned wealth of the country.

It is called, by way of camouflage, "A bill to promote peace and the national defense through equal distribution of the burdens of war by drafting the use of money according to the ability to lend the Government."

The bill has nothing at all to do with "peace" or "national defense."

It FORCES bonds on the income-earning public precisely in the manner of the dictator countries of Europe.

THIS "FORCE BILL" begins its grab with net wealth in excess of $1000, of which 5 per cent will be expropriated in return for bonds which will not be due "before the expiration of FIFTY YEARS" (when most of the bondholders will be dead) and which will pay ONLY ONE PER CENT PER ANNUM.

There is a sliding scale of confiscation up to wealth of $100,000,000.

A person who has $100,000, for instance, will be COMPELLED to buy $9450 worth of these bonds.

Neither the principal nor interest of these bonds is tax-free.

If any citizen shall refuse to buy these bonds he is liable to fines up to $100,000 or imprisonment for five years, or both.

Under the Lee Bill, the President would be ABSOLUTE DICTATOR OF THE WEALTH OF THE COUNTRY.

Snooping boards in every community in the country are to be appointed by him to "appraise" all personal wealth.

It is doubtful whether any such form of personal espionage on wealth exists in either Russia or Germany.

The vigorous minority report on this un-American bill, signed by Senators Bridges and Gurney, points out that—

1—The measure will contribute neither to the promotion of peace nor to national defense.

2—It would cause a severe and drastic economic disturbance, if not chaos, in case of war.

3—It would impede the prosecution of the war by reason of such disturbances.

Acting Secretary of War Louis Johnson in his letter of September 9, 1937, to the Committee on Military Affairs of the Senate, when a similar bill was proposed, said such a measure was "NOT IN THE INTEREST OF THE NATIONAL DEFENSE AND THE WAR DEPARTMENT RECOMMENDS THAT IT BE NOT ENACTED INTO LAW."

THE LEE MEASURE can be summed up in these words:

THE PERSONAL AND INDUSTRIAL ENSLAVEMENT OF THE AMERICAN PEOPLE TO A FORM OF COMMUNAZISM WHICH WOULD CAUSE THE PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES TO BE HAILED BY ALL THE DICTATORS OF EUROPE AS "COMRADE."

If the confiscatory and bureaucratic Lee Bill—and all similar measures—are to be defeated in the next session, NOW is the time for the American people—if we are to preserve our liberties and institutions—to focus their attention on the coming session of Congress.

We want no "force bills" in this country in war or peace.

If war comes to us (which God forbid), PATRIOTISM and the FREE WILL of our people can be depended on to support the government to our last penny and our last ounce of strength.

A forced bond issue by confiscation of wealth is AN INSULT TO THE AMERICANISM OF EVERY AMERICAN.

THE CHRISTMAS SEASON is actually with us. Today, nearly a month ahead of the usual time, Boston stores begin showing holiday merchandise.

No one can fail to endorse this "shop early" program, sponsored by the Retail Trade Board and enthusiastically supported by both merchants and the buying public.

It will do much to eliminate the haste and confusion of previous years.

And it prolongs for young and old the time of year which is by universal agreement HAPPIEST and BEST.

March of Events -:- By BENJAMIN DeCASSERES

THE RAIDS of the German pocket-cruisers, Admiral Scheer and the Deutschland, recalls three of the most romantic war-feats of modern times—tales that rival the legends of the Flying Dutchman, the phantom ship that seafaring men have seen for ages but have never overtaken.

During the World War the Emden, the Moewe and the Seeadler captured or sunk in three years scores of British vessels, cut cables, sank Russian and French boats of all kinds—272,000 tons of Allied shipping in all.

They plied the seas under all sorts of disguises and all sorts of flags. The Seeadler was commanded by "The Sea Devil," the famous Count Felix Von Luckner. It was really an American sailing ship, the Pass of Balmaha, captured early in the war by Germans while it was under British escort.

These piratical days have returned, but I doubt whether this war will give us three such glamour boats as the Emden, the Moewe and the Seeadler.

STRAIGHT as a bullet comes the plan to settle all planning out of the fertile brain of J. M. Rowley, secretary of the East Orange, (N. J.) Recreation Commission.

He publicized the following historic weakness of the human race and gave to us all, gratis, a cure:

"A great percentage of us are lazy people, and no amount of program planning is going to change us. So why not give us attractive grounds where we can just sit and sit and like it."

'Tis true, alas! 'Tis true. The human race, as a whole, is lazy and that is the reason why the enterprising and hustling few rise to power and "put it over" on those whose ideal is park-loafing.

Most "planning" on the New Deal level merely makes lazy people lazier. Most "security" laws also make lazy people lazier, and are passed by enterprising demagogues for just that purpose.

DR. LEVERETT S. LYON, executive vice-president of the Brookings Institution, said recently in an address in Johnsonburg, N. J., in defending some degree of federal regulation of private business:

"In every field in which there is private decision regulations have been developed which require that individuals act in accordance with current ideas of what is good public policy,"

"Good public policy" has an elastic meaning. That is, for instance, the reason given for Hitler's enslavement of the German people and for the Soviets' murder of some 5,000,000 peasants in the last 20 years.

Historically, it is an incontrovertible fact that "good public policy" is the excuse for every crime against the individual and his rights that has been committed from the beginnings of government to the present time.

Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt -:- MY DAY

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20—The weather in Washington is still like Indian summer. I could not help thinking how breath-takingly lovely this city is, for it is more nearly like living in the country since trees and parks are so much a part of the landscape.

Three gentlemen came to lunch with me Saturday. Each one of them has something really interesting that he is working on. The Secretary of Labor had asked me to see Father Patterson of South Dakota. I was prepared to be interested in his work, but found myself equally interested in his personality.

Determination and driving power come out strongly in his young and sensitive face when he begins to talk about what he wants to do for the dependent children of South Dakota.

They are trying to establish a memorial to Grace Abbott, a home where children may be placed while foster parents are found for them.

AS IT IS NOW, a child who is left homeless or who must be taken from an undesirable home, has to be declared delinquent and may find himself in a reform school with boys who have already learned many things from life that are better left out of a child's education.

MRS. ROOSEVELT
Finds Washington Lovely

All the rest of his life he must carry the stigma of being a delinquent child, simply because there is no other place to put him in the interval of getting some permanent plan made for his future.

South Dakota is one of the states which has been through so many years of drouth that it is hard to urge on the people the undertaking of even necessary work like this, for they simply have not the taxable values to meet the demands of state government.

This is a misfortune in which the rest of the nation has a stake, for the children of today make up the nation of the future. They do not remain in South Dakota, they may be your neighbors wherever you live in the days to come.

My cousin, Monroe Robinson, who is interested in transportation problems kept us talking over a variety of subjects and I was sorry to bring the luncheon hour to a close.

FRIDAY EVENING I went to speak to the Home Economics Section of the Land Grant Colleges' Association, meeting here for their annual convention. It was good to see Dr. Louise Stanley and Miss Flora Rose, of Cornell University again. Some people lift your spirit just by contact and Flora Rose has always had that effect on me.

Friday morning at 9:30 I went to the general session of the association. I spoke for a few minutes and then had the opportunity of hearing the Secretary of Agriculture speak on conservation.

I was particularly interested in the stress which he laid on the fact that all of conservation has as a primary object the conservation of human beings.

STAR, AUTHOR STILL STRANGERS

By Leonard Lyons

NEW YORK, Nov. 20 –Two men walked by each other at the Rainbow Room, without a sign of recognition . . . The first was Robert Taylor, who became a star because of his performance in "The Magnificent Obsession" . . . The other was Lloyd Douglas —who wrote "The Magnificent Obsession" . . . They still haven't met.

SOCIAL NOTES: William K. Vanderbilt told this at Fefe's Monte Carlo: He rode in a cab down Park ave. while the hackie cursed the traffic . . . "They call this an age of progress," the hackie stated, "and yet, look at this traffic mess. This couldn't happen in the old days" . . . "No, it couldn't," Vanderbilt agreed, "35 years ago there were only three cars in New York, and I owned the first one" . . . "No, you didn't," the hackie insisted. "William K. Vanderbilt owned the first one" . . . "I'm William K. Vanderbilt," said Vanderbilt . . . "Well, this is an age of progress," the hackie admitted. "After all—35 years ago I couldn't meet a Vanderbilt."

BARBARA HUTTON

FOREIGN DISPATCH: Because coffee has become the rarest of luxuries in the Balkans, last month Countess Dorothy di Frasso shipped some coffee, duty paid, to her friends, Crown Prince Humberto of Italy and Princess Francoise of Greece. Each achnowledged receipts without mentioning "Coffee," lest their subjects be apprised of their having obtained something which, to the others, is rationed . . . Humberto thanked the Countess, and hinted that he "might hop over for G. C. F." Those initials meant "Good Coffee in France" . . . Francoise's guarded acknowledgment was "Thanks for the black stuff."

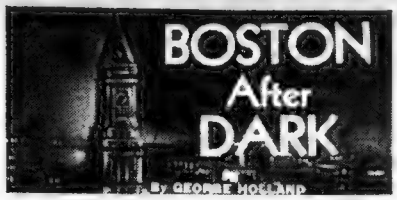
FINANCE DEPT.: Damon Runyon told C. Cambridge Green that he'd rather own a great horse than anything else. "You used to love heavyweight fighters," Green reminded. "You mean you'd rather own Seabiscuit than Joe Louis?" . . . "Yes," Runyon explained. "You don't have to split any purses with horses."



MONDAY MORNING MUSINGS: As a member of the Norfolk Prison Colony, Kenneth E. Buck, convicted kidnaper of the Cape Cod child, Peggy McMath, has had a number of years to ponder his own case . . . The McMath kidnaping had certain mysterious angles not solved satisfactorily to many who were concerned in its solution . . . Buck, with plenty of time on his hands to mull things over, has been setting down on paper a detailed review of the entire case . . . Several months ago, the column has learned, he decided to be the author of a petition for pardon . . . So he wrote and wrote . . . And re-wrote . . . Finally his manuscript took shape and form, and a final draft was completed —and submitted for criticism to a few trusted friends.

THE PETITION FOR PARDON is "sensational," according to a report reaching this corner . . . Buck is living in hope that it is convincing enough to influence Gov. Saltonstall in opening the gates of mercy . . . This much of the story we know to be fact . . . And now comes some interesting additions which we believed to be accurate, but were unable to verify on a Sunday . . Some weeks ago a dear friend of Buck is supposed to have delivered his petition to the Governor with a request that the prisoner be pardoned this Thanksgiving . . . The friend drove up from Harwichport and presented the petition personally to Governor Saltonstall at his home . . . The Governor has said nothing about receipt of the petition—if he received it . . . But (this is also unverified) a checkup of some of the statements made by the alleged kidnaper of young Peggy McMath is said to have been made . . . If the Governor takes action, the McMath case will be in the headlines again . . . If he chooses not to take action, or even talk about the case, a wealthy and faithful friend of Buck is prepared to go further in an attempt to win Kenneth his freedom

PERHAPS "FUNNY" IS THE WORD instead of "phoney"—best to describe the war . . . The bereft families and tragic victims of the wholesale explosion of mines in the "belligerent zone" would protest a description of the war as "phoney" . . . Of course it is the colloquial use of "funny" in the meaning of strange or peculiar, and not the meaning that connotes laughter, we are substituting . . . Two items in the New York Times amusement section inspired this paragraph . . . One tells that a good many Christmas pantomimes, an old English custom, have gone into rehearsal.

BUT THE AUTHORS are hampered because the Lord Chamberlain "is not going to allow Hitler to be caricatured on the stage" . . . Then B. T. Crisler, who writes humorously, tells a serious story about the banning of the Soviet anti-Nazi film, "Professor Mamlock," by the Sussex Watch Committee, with headquarters in Hove, England . . . Why was the film banned? . . . Mr. Crisler gives the reason and terms it a "quaint ground" . . . The film has been banned because "it might cause hatred for Germany" . . . They certainly seem to be

OFFER MARLENE TOP "APPLAUSE" ROLE

By Louella O. Parsons

Marlene Dietrich

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Nov. 20 The wiseacres who were so sure Paramount had its fill of Marlene Dietrich, whose salary was sky high when she was under contract to them, must have taken it big Saturday when La Dietrich showed up on the lot to talk a picture deal. The business on tap was whether or not Marlene would like to make "Applause," the yarn about a stage star which Helen Morgan made for the same company several years ago.

When Marlene came into the commissary she got a big hand from her former co-workers and all agreed that the once mysterious and aloof Dietrich had changed a lot. She greeted everyone like an old pal. Later, Marlene went to the projection room to see the first version of "Applause." Before she left they handed her a new version of the same story to read and if she likes the changes she'll return to her old stamping ground to make her next.

A LINE OR TWO: Now that Ginger Rogers and Bill Powell have discovered each other again I wonder if Ginger will drop in to see her first husband, Jack Peper (his name was Culpepper when he and Ginger were married in Texas years ago.) Jack is now a master of ceremonies in a Hollywood night club, and it is the first break he has had for a long time.

MARLENE DIETRICH had two beaux at the Bublichki Josef Von Sternberg on one arm and Joe Pasternak on the other; old "debbil" flu still has Richard Greene bedded; Ray Milland and Anna Neagle learning a special waltz to do to the tune of "Alice Blue Gown" have to rehearse every noon hour; Walt Disney is sending his friends the most stunning water color sketches of the movie characters he used in "Mother Goose in Hollywood".

DAILY STORY — Fate Vs. Love

I HAD PRACTISED medicine for three years when a girl, with whom I had been deeply in love during my college days, came into my office.

"Gene," she asked me gaily, "is it anything serious?" Her voice rose mockingly, but I could sense the fear and horror in the cynical bit of her laughter.

"Serious enough for you to be confined in a hospital for a short time," I replied, trying not to show the terror I felt as I was faced with the realization that she was suffering from an incurable disease, that her life was limited to weeks, perhaps days.

"Nonsense," she cried deprecatingly. "I'm all right. Just this frightful dizziness." With those words she crumpled back into her chair, her cynical attitude abandoned as she was faced with sudden pain and fear.

WHEN she was once again herself, she turned her eyes bitterly toward mine. "It's a matter of time, isn't it, Gene?"

I laughed at her fears although my own heart was heavy with grief and despair. She turned to me trustingly "I'm just jittery," she apologized. "But what about your taking me to dinner tonight and our reviving old times?"

We dined in a quiet place but Cynthia seemed restless and high-strung.

Later that night, as we drove up before the apartment house in which she lived, she turned to me suddenly and said, "I love you, Gene. I want you to remember that always. I love you."

I pulled her into my arms and kissed her again and again. "Darling," I whispered huskily, "you're so lovely . . . lovely. If only we hadn't been such stubborn fools . . . the time together we've missed.

She stared at me strangely. "I'll go into the hospital tomorrow, Gene, as you say." She clasped my hand and jumped quickly from the car.

NEXT MORNING a special delivery letter heavily sealed was brought to my room by my valet. It read:—"Gene darling: When you read this, I shall be miles away. Your eyes gave you away last night. So frightened they were, frightened for me, dearest. The last doctor I had told me the cold truth but I wanted confirmation from you. It is better this way. I've loved you always. Cynthia."

LISTEN, WORLD! — By Elsie Robinson

ALL YOU GET out of life is your own feeling about it. A strange statement? Perhaps you don't believe it. Maybe you're young—excited about those years ahead. You have certain definite ideas about life. You are sure that you can make a success of it, even if others haven't—if you can only get the breaks.

If only you can do what you want to do—if only right things will happen to you, then everything will be jake. For life, you are sure, is the sum total of one's experiences and achievements; and if you have lucky experiences and successful achievements, life is bound to be a happy affair.

Is THAT what you think? Then you're due for a surprise.

LIFE is as vast or as petty, as exciting or monotonous, as beautiful or ugly, as noble or wretched, as our own feelings about it.

It isn't what happens to you that counts—for the thing that happens to you isn't really you at all.

Nor is it what you achieve that counts—for the thing you achieve is shaped by outward circumstance over which you have no control. And so the thing you achieve isn't really you, either, but it, too, is like a gesture and a dream.

The only thing that counts in life— the only thing that has meaning or reality—the only thing that you really own or can bank on IS YOUR OWN FEELING ABOUT LIFE

You can buy countless beautiful articles if you have enough money BUT YOU CAN ONLY EXPERIENCE BEAUTY IF YOU FEEL BEAUTY

You can become popular and beloved if you have what it takes BUT YOU ONLY EXPERIENCE LOVE IF YOU FEEL LOVE, IF YOU GIVE LOVE.

You can acquaint yourself with the brave and splendid mysterious and exciting phases of life by reading about them, traveling, meeting adventurous people—YET LIFE WILL STILL REMAIN DRAB AND DREARY UNLESS THERE ARE COURAGE AND CURIOSITY IN YOUR OWN HEART.

LIFE isn't what you do or what you have. LIFE IS ONLY WHAT YOU FEEL AND YOU CAN FEEL WHAT YOU CHOOSE TO FEEL.

But nobody else can help you with that feeling or enter into it. Even your nearest and dearest cannot become a part of it. Life is your own inner secret "stream of consciousness" for which you alone are responsible—which you alone enjoy or despise.

SABOTAGE WARNING BY DIES

DETROIT, Nov. 20 (INS) Communist and Nazi agents in Detroit are prepared to sabotage industrial production to prevent shipment of war supplies to the Allies in Europe, Chairman Martin Dies of the congressional committee investigating un American activities, charged today.

He said the knowledge of the sabotage plots forced him to make an emergency trip to Detroit to hold a hearing behind closed doors.

"The informa.ts," he said, "are disgruntled Communists who are giving us this information because they dislike the alliance between Germany and Russia.

"We know the Nazi and Red leaders are planning strikes and other means of holding up production in the Detroit industrial area."

Tanker Blast Laid to Fumes

BAYONNE, N. J., Nov. 20 (INS)—Accumulated gas fumes and not saboteurs today was believed responsible for the blast that shattered a Standard Oil tanker at her Bayonne, N. J., pier, causing damage estimated at $200,000.

The explosion ripped a gaping hole in the deck of the tanker amidships and shook the immediate area as if an earthquake had struck.

The vessel, the J. A. Mowinckel, flying the flag of Panama, brought 8,250,000 gallons of oil from Venezuela five days ago but had been drained of her cargo when the blast occurred.

"Oil tankers are potential floating bombs—you don't need any time bombs to set them off if a spark of some sort happens to find its way into a compartment filled with gas fumes," an oil company spokesman said.

Score 402 Hits In 60 Seconds With New Gun

PEEKSKILL, N. Y., Nov. 20 (AP)—In the first test by National Guardsmen of the new Garand semi-automatic service rifle, 12 men scored 402 shots in 60 seconds on man-sized silhouette targets.

The test was made on a 200-yard range at Camp Smith by picked riflemen of the 107th Infantry of the New York National Guard.

Officers said the men averaged 34 shots a minute per man, compared with a possible maximum of only 20 shots a minute with the Springfield rifle, which the Garand is replacing as the U. S. Army's basic infantry arm.

Maj.-Gen. William N. Haskell, commander of the New York National Guard, hailed the Garand as "a very powerful weapon that will give the infantry a tremendous firing power."

The Garand is a gas-operated, clip-fed shoulder weapon weighing 9¾ pounds, one-half pound more than the Springfield rifle.

New England Thanksgiving

By MARTHA LEE

With Thanksgiving day in the offing, our thoughts perennially turn to those sturdy men and women of New England whose hardihood and devotion to principle have been an inspiration to all Americans through the years.

In a new and hostile world, they struggled to carve out for themselves an existence which, while fraught with dangers and hardship, provided the freedom of religious thought and expression for which their pilgrimage was made.

EARLY INFLUENCE IN FOODS

As a strong people always leave their mark upon the habits and customs of generations to follow, so the Puritans have greatly influenced present day living in New England. Particularly on Thanksgiving Day do we all adopt the spirit and custom of early New England, even appropriating the traditional foods of the day.

One of the most famous New England dishes is Indian pudding It is typical of the simplicity which was a necessity for the Puritan homemaker, and makes excellent and appetizing use of the few materials which were available in her kitchen.

For a characteristic, historically appropriate, and delectable dessert to enhance Thanksgiving dinner, serve Indian pudding.

INDIAN PUDDING

¼ cup corn meal
¼ tsp. salt
½ tsp. ginger
Dash cinnamon
Dash cloves
1 2-3 cups irradiated evaporated milk
1 2-3 cups water
⅓ cup molasses

Mix meal, salt and spices. Add enough of the milk to moisten. Scald remainder of milk with water. Add meal to scalded milk, then stir in molasses. Turn into a buttered baking dish and bake in a slow oven (300 deg. F.) 2 to 2½ hours. Stir occasionally. Serve with vanilla ice cream, if desired. The ice cream may be frozen in a mold or may be put through a pastry tube into a large sauce dish and packed in an ice and salt mixture to freeze hard. Makes 6 servings.

To add a modern touch to this "Early American" Thanksgiving dessert, top each serving of Indian pudding with a scoop of fine homemade vanilla ice cream. The combination is luscious.

VANILLA ICE CREAM

¾ cup sweet butter.
⅓ cup sugar (scant).
1 egg.
1 tsp. gelatin.
1 cup water.
2 cups irradiated evaporated milk.
½ tsp. salt.
2 tsp. vanilla.

Cream butter. Add sugar and cream until light and fluffy. Beat in the egg. Soften gelatin in 2 tablespoons of the water. Scald 1 cup of the milk. Dissolve softened gelatin in the milk. Stir hot gelatin-milk mixture into butter-sugar mixture. Add remaining water, milk and the salt and vanilla. Chill thoroughly. Freeze with a 1-6 salt ice mixture. Makes 1½ quarts.

Love

Maid of Honor Snagged Best Man

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I suppose this is an old story to you. But when my best friend was married he asked me to be his best man, which I was glad to do. The girl who was maid of honor came from another set, so I didn't meet her until about a week before the wedding. She is very good looking and very cordial to me, and I fell in love at sight.

I suppose I made a fool of myself over her, and even went so far as to tell her I loved her, the night of the wedding, but she didn't give me an answer. I tried to make a date with her, but so far haven't succeeded. I saw her at a dance at the club the other evening, and she spoke to me, but that's all. I certainly would like to have a date with her.

I've taken out other girls since then, but she's the first girl who has really attracted me.

BEST MAN.

I'm afraid, my dear, you were too sudden with your love making, and have scared the young lady away. She may not have been ready to take you seriously. Everyone, more or less, makes love at a wedding, especially the wedding party, and it really doesn't mean anything.

If you should happen to see her again, treat her pleasantly and don't let on how hard you have fallen for her. Perhaps later on she may accept an invitation to go out with you. Have patience, and try again. You know the one about "faint heart ne'er won fair lady."

No Obstacle

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

May I marry the brother-in-law of my deceased sister? We're very much in love, but I hear we cannot marry in my church within that degree of relationship.

PUZZLED.

No church in Christendom or outside the pale of Christendom would object to such a remote connection as a brother-in-law of a deceased sister. Don't waste a minute; get your trousseau together.

Christmas-Angel Frocks

THIS IS just the beginning of holiday dances . . . parties that riot through December and climax with Christmas and New Year's. You'll need dance frocks, loads of them, and you certainly can manage a number of them when you fit such frocks as these into your budget! House party, fraternity dance, Saturday club gatherings, what-have-you . . . there just isn't an affair at which these frocks wouldn't shine. Though they're extremely inexpensive, there is nothing unhappily unsophisticated about them, yet they're young enough to gain the approval of a mother who's apt to curb the slinky touch. Like a Christmas angel . . . the white rayon taffeta, whose girdle and adorable jacket are gold-quilted. The jacket zips snugly up the front and turns the rather formal-ish gown into a real dinner dress. This, in white, rose or peacock, sizes 10-18, is only $6.99.

Picture girl . . . you in peacock or rose rayon slipper satin, with a heart decolletage framed in pleats and big pouff sleeves . . . little, little waist and miles of skirt. In sizes 12-20 it's $6.99.

For shopping information on these dance frocks, phone Annice Brink, Fashion Editor, LIBerty 4000, week-days until five-thirty, or write.

You Can Be Beautiful

New Super-Size Lipstick

By ARLINE GOULD

IT LOOKS like a series of the widest gold wedding bands you've ever seen . . . probably like the one your grandmother wore . . . but ingeniously piled one on the other. And it's the newest, handsomest, cleverest lipstick there is!

The beauty authority who set jewelers to creating this lipstick, realized that we women really need and prefer a big lipstick—so she called it "lipstick plus" and then encased her newest, most fascinating tones in a miraculously-contrived case.

Two ingenious devices are used. And they're not just "tricksy," they're practical. First, the case is constructed so cleverly that you can change your lipstick shade at any time, in the twinkling of an eye. That means you may have several refills, and when your nail polish and make-up call for a certain complement, you don't have to go rummaging around for another lipstick.

You'll find that each refill, itself a gargantuan size, comes set in its own metal base, so that you needn't get messed up changing it. When it's worn down or you want to change the lipstick, a flick of the fingers fastens the new one down securely.

The second device, which deserves rave notices, is a telescope arrangement inside the case, which makes it fold down as each lipstick is worn down. You'll never waste a bit of it this way.

If you'd like to learn about this fascinating "lipstick plus" in a burnished gold tone case, phone Arline Gould, LIBerty 4000, week-days until 5:30, or write, inclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope, etc.

Manners

Courteous Children

By MRS. C. BEECKMAN

I cannot understand why a mother permits her husky son to keep his seat in a crowded bus or street car while an elderly woman—or, indeed, any woman—stands in front of him or near him. Not many times in my observations have I seen a mother wake up to this absurd impoliteness of her son and urge him to give up his seat.

Too often I have observed that many mothers push their way into the bus or street car and, by main force, push a stalwart son in ahead of them so that the able-bodied young man (not young gentleman) can snatch a seat and comfortably sprawl in it for the rest of the trip.

HUMAN IMPULSE?

We probably should feel sorry for Willie . . . he's undoubtedly all worn out from playing football or baseball or hockey! And if Mommer makes it possible and easy for him to capture a seat why should he be expected to relinquish it? What does the selfish young man care about a human impulse? Self-satisfied, he and his mother sit there, totally oblivious to any call of decency, of courtesy. What an advertisement he is of his mother!

INSIST ON COURTESY

If you are this kind of mother, please stop to think what destruction of manliness and gentlemanliness you are accomplishing. Why should you encourage that big boy of yours to be an active namby-pamby when it comes to showing human decency and courteous thought for other people? You are doing yourself no favor, and you are certainly doing him a grievous wrong.

If you don't insist the he show courtesy to other women, how can you expect that he will show courtesy to you? How can you expect that he will develop the good manners so essential for success in his business or professional life? And how can you expect that he will grow up to be the gentleman of whom you can be proud? This vicious habit of discourtesy, which you are fostering, will inevitably take vicious root.

Get that big boy of yours up on his feet when decency demand that he should be up on his feet!

Dr. Eddy's Question Box

By DR. WALTER H. EDDY

Director of Good Housekeeping Bureau

Questions concerning foods, sanitation and health will be answered only if a stamped, addressed envelope accompanies your request. No exceptions can be made to this rule. Prescriptional advice can not be given, nor can food or drug samples be analyzed. Address Dr. Walter H. Eddy, 57th st. at 8th ave., New York city

If You Can, Avoid the Cause

"Is there anything that will cure hay fever? I have tried various nasal sprays and eye drops, with little success. Is there anything I could do or leave out of my diet that would help?" E. A. P.

It is stated by one authority that there are 125 different kinds of pollen known to produce hay fever. The first step in avoiding this disease is to locate definitely the kinds of pollen or other irritant substances that are responsible.

The main advantage of this determination is to tell you what to avoid. Many people who suffer from hay fever have learned to avoid it by change of residence during the period when the particular pollen is abundant in the air.

In the September, 1932, issue of Good Housekeeping I discussed this question of what the doctor calls hyper-sensitiveness (phenomena such as hay fever and food poisoning). Following the appearance of that article I received a considerable deluge of letters from various individuals who claim to have the perfect cure for the disease.

But the medical advisers whom I consulted were not optimistic about them, and their advice is what I have given you above—locate the cause and avoid it. There are, of course, measures which can be taken to relieve the symptoms, but I know of no 100 per cent cure for the condition if the patient remains in the region where the aggravating cause is present.

Don't Trust the Dime!

"I have been told that a positive test for edible mushrooms is to cook a dime with them. If the dime is tarnished, the mushrooms are poisonous; if it remains bright, the mushrooms are of the edible non-poisonous variety. Is this test safe?" L. R. F.

Dr. Harvey W. Wiley wrote in his "Foods and Adulteration":

"There is no test, like the silver spoon test, which will enable one to tell the poisonous mushroom from the edible ones."

Mushrooms are plants with special distinguishing marks. One can proceed safely in the selection of edible forms only by learning what their marks are and acting accordingly. Atkinson in his "Studies of American Fungi" says

"In the selection of mushrooms to eat, great caution should be employed by those who are not reasonably familiar with the means of determination of the species, or those who have not an intimate acquaintance with certain forms. Rarely should a beginner be encouraged to eat them upon his own determination. It is best at first to consult someone who knows or to send first specimens away for determination."

This is sound advice

A Christmas Carol

By CHARLES DICKENS

The World's Most Beloved Story Of Yuletide Joy and Cheer

SCROOGE was not reading now, but walking up and down despairingly. Scrooge looked at the Ghost, and, with a mournful shaking of his head, glanced anxiously toward the door. It opened, and a little girl, much younger than the boy, came darting in and putting her arms about his neck, and often kissing him, addressed him as her "Dear, dear brother."

"I have come to bring you home dear brother!" said the child, clasping her tiny hands, and bending down to laugh. "To bring you home, home, home'"

"Home, little Fan?" returned the boy.

"Yes!" said the child, brimful of glee. "Home, for good and all. Home, forever and ever. Father is so much kinder than he used to be, that home's like Heaven. He spoke so gently to me one dear night when I was going to bed, that I was not afraid to ask him once more if you might come home; and he said Yes, you should; and sent me in a coach to bring you. And you're to be a man!" said the child, opening her eyes; "and are never to come back here; but first we're to be together all the Christmas long, and have the merriest time in all the world."

"You are quite a woman, little Fan!" exclaimed the boy

She clapped her hands and laughed, and tried to touch his head; but being too little, laughed again, and stood on tiptoe to embrace him. Then she began to drag him, in her childish eagerness toward the door; and he, nothing loath to go, accompanied her

"A terrible voice in the hall cried, "Bring down Master Scrooge's box, there!" and in the hall appeared the schoolmaster himself, who glared on Master Scrooge with a ferocious condescension and threw him into a dreadful state of mind by shaking hands with him.

CHILLY HOSPITALITY

He then conveyed him and his sister into the veriest old well of a shivering best-parlor that ever was seen, where the maps upon the wall, and the the celestial and terrestrial globes in the windows were waxy with cold.

Here he produced a decanter of curiously light wine, and a block of curiously heavy cake, and administered installments of those dainties to the young people; at the same time sending out a mes-ger servant to offer a glass of "something" to the postboy, who answered that he thanked the gentleman, but if it was the same tap as he had tasted before, he had rather not.

Master Scrooge's trunk being by this time tied on to the top of the chaise, the children bade the schoolmaster good-by right willingly; and, getting into it, drove gaily down the garden-sweep; the quick wheels dashing the hoar-frost and snow from off the dark leaves of the evergreens like spray.

"Always a delicate creature, whom a breath might have withered," said the Ghost. "But she had a large heart!"

"So she had," cried Scrooge. "You're right. I will not gainsay it, Spirit. God forbid!"

"She died a woman," said the Ghost, "and had, as I think, children."

"One child," Scrooge returned.

"True," said the Ghost. "Your nephew!"

Scrooge seemed uneasy in his mind and answered briefly, "Yes."

Although they had but that moment left the school behind them, they were now in the busy thoroughfares of a city, where shadowy passengers passed and repassed; wher shadowy carts and coaches battled for the way, and all the strife and tunuit of a real city were. It was made plain enough, by the dressing of the shops, that here, too, it was Christmas time again: but it was evening, and the streets were lighted up.

HIS FORMER SELF

The Ghost stopped at a certain warehouse door, and asked Scrooge if he knew it.

"Know it!" said Scrooge. "Was I apprenticed here!"

They went in. At sight of an old gentleman in a Welsh wig, sitting behind such a high desk, that if he had been two inches taller he must have knocked his head against the ceiling, Scrooge cried in great excitement:

"Why, it's old Fezziwig! Bless his heart; it's Fezziwig alive again!"

Old Fezziwig laid down his pen, and looked up at the clock, which pointed to the hour of 7. He rubbed his hands; adjusted his capacious waistcoat; laughed all over himself, from his shoes to his organ of benevolence; and called out in a comfortable, oily, rich, fat, jovial voice:

"Yo, ho, there! Ebenezer! Dick!"

Scrooge's former self, now grown a young man, came briskly in, accompanied by his fellow-'prentice.

"Dick Wilkins, to be sure!" said Scrooge to the Ghost. "Bless me, yes. There he is. He was very much attached to me, was Dick. Poor Dick! Dear, dear!"

"Yo, ho, my boys!" said Fezziwig. "No more work tonight. Christmas Eve, Dick. Christmas, Ebenezer! Let's have the shutters up," cried old Fezziwig, with a sharp clap of his hands, "before a man can say Jack Robinson!"

You wouldn't believe how those two fellows went at it! They charged into the street with the shutters—one, two, three—had 'em up in their places—four, five, six—barred 'em and pinned 'em—seven, eight, nine—and came back before you could have got to twelve, panting like racehorses.

"Hilli-ho!" cried old Fezziwig, skipping down from the high desk, with wonderful agility. "Clear away, my lads, and let's have lots of room here! Hilli-ho, Dick! Chirrup, Ebenezer!"

Clear away! There was nothing they wouldn't have cleared away, or couldn't have cleared away, with old Fezziwig looking on. It was done in a minute. Every movable was packed off, as if it were dismissed from public life for evermore; the floor was swept and watered, the lamps were trimmed, fuel was heaped upon the fire; and the warehouse was as snug, and warm, and dry, and bright a ballroom as you would desire to see upon a winter's night.

In came a fiddler with a music book, and went up to the lofty desk and made an orchestra of it, and tuned like 50 stomach-aches. In came Mrs. Fezziwig, one vast substantial smile. In came the three Miss Fezziwigs, beaming and lovable. In came the six younger followers whose hearts they broke. In came all the young men and women employed in the business. In came the housemaid with her cousin, the baker.

In came the cook, with her brother's particular friend, the milkman. In came the boy from over the way, who was suspected of not having board enough from his master; trying to hide himself behind the girl from the next door but one, who was proved to have had her ears pulled by her mistress

In they all came, one after another; some shyly, some boldly, some gracefully, some awkwardly, some pushing, some pulling; in they all came, anyhow and everyhow.

Away they all went, twenty couple at once; hands half round and back again the other way; down the middle and up again; round and round in various stages of affectionate grouping; old top couple always turning up in the wrong place; new top couple starting off again, as soon as they got there; all top couples at last, and not a bottom one to help them!

GLADNESS REIGNS

When this result was brought about, Old Fezziwig, clapping his hands to stop the dance, cried out, "Well done!" and the fiddler plunged his hot face into a pot of porter especially provided for that purpose. But, scorning rest, upon his reappearance he instantly began again though there were no dancers yet, as if the other fiddler had been carried home, exhausted on a shutter, and he were a brand-new man resolved to beat him out of sight, or perish.

There were more dances, and there were forfeits, and more dances, and there was cake, and there was negus, and there was a great piece of Cold Roast, and there was a great piece of Cold Boiled, and there were mince pies and plenty of beer.

But the great effect of the evening came after the roast and boiled, when the fiddler (an artful dog, mind! The sort of man who knew his business better than you or I could have told it him!) struck up "Sir Roger de Coverley." Then Old Fezziwig stood out to dance with Mrs. Fezziwig. Top couple, too; with a good stiff piece of work cut out for them; three or four and twenty pair of partners, people who were not to be trifled with; people who would dance, and had no notion of walking.

But if they had been twice as many—ah, four times—Old Fezziwig would have been a match for them, and so would Mrs. Fezziwig. As to her, she was worthy to be his partner in every sense of the term. If that's not high praise, tell me higher, and I'll use it.

A positive light appeared to issue from Fezziwig's calves. They shone in every part of the dance like moons. You couldn't have predicted, at any given time, what would become of them next. And when Old Fezziwig and Mrs. Fezziwig had gone all through the dance—advance and retire, both hands to your partner, bow and curtsey, corkscrew, thread-the-needle, and back again to your place—Fezziwig "cut"—cut so deftly that he appeared to wink with his legs, and came upon his feet again without a stagger.

When the clock struck 11 this domestic ball broke up. Mr. and Mrs. Fezziwig took their stations, one on either side the door, and, shaking hands with every person individually as he or she went out, wished him or her a Merry Christmas. When everybody had retired but the two 'prentices, they did the same to them; and thus the cheerful voices died away, and the lads were left to their beds, which were under a counter in the back-shop.

SCROOGE DISAGREES

During the whole of this time Scrooge had acted like a man out of his wits. His heart and soul were in the scene, and with his former self.

He corroborated everything, remembered everything, enjoyed everything and underwent the strangest agitation. It was not until now, when the bright faces of his former self and Dick were turned from them, that he remembered the Ghost and became conscious that it was looking full upon him, while the light upon its head burned very clear.

"A small matter," said the Ghost, "to make these silly folk so full of gratitude."

"Small!" echoed Scrooge.

The Spirit signed to him to listen to the two apprentices, who were pouring out their hearts in praise of Fezziwig; and when he had done so, said:

"Why! Is it not? He has spent but a few pounds of your mortal money, three or four perhaps. Is that so much that he deserves this praise?"

45-MINUTE CHAMPION

BY FRED SCHWED, JR.

A Complete Short Story Daily on This Page

HUGH DELEVAN, 40 years old, stood on the 17th tee and thought how he hated the game of golf. He had been playing magnificently for three days now, and he had come to feel about his golf clubs as a galley slave must have felt about his oar.

The hole he was playing was the 71st of the United States Open Championship, and he was leading the field.

He was leading his nearest competitor, young Joe Tidball, who was playing directly behind him, by a single slim stroke. He had been further ahead, indeed "safely" ahead, only half an hour before.

Paired with him on this last round was Ben Bevans, his lifetime friend. Delevan found himself actually envying his friend. Lucky Ben, once open champion, out of the running in this tournament! He looked at Ben, and grinned at him as best he could, and Ben, careful to conceal the pity in his own eyes, grinned back.

Delevan was straining all his concentration to fight off a feeling of futility. He had been in this position so many times before! For Hugh Delevan, now 40, conceded to be the greatest stylist and shot maker of his generation, had never won a major title. The bitter luck of his career had become a sort of legendary tragic joke. He himself had said on occasion:

"I have frequently been the open champion of the United States, and once of Great Britain. But the longest I ever held any of those titles was 45 minutes, usually much less. Always some hacker behind me gets a touch of sun and brings in a round in 60 something to beat me."

And now it seemed that fate had grown so fond of this hackneyed prank that she was about to play it again.

It was no fault of Delevan's that his lead had dwindled to the nearest thing to nothing. He had played restrained and beautiful golf, and so far he was par for the round, which is all that would be asked of a man in his position by St. Andrew himself.

But young Tidball (of all people, it had to be Tidball) had been biting into par. Once on the first nine, twice so far on the last.

At first it had not seemed to matter, for Tidball had started six strokes back of Delevan and had not been considered. But now Delevan had just received the incredible and shocking news. On the par four 16th Tidball had sunk his short pitch and run. An eagle two, probably the only eagle two of the entire tournament!

Benny Bevans had felt the sickening shock of disappointment and terror almost as poignantly as Delevan. Ben was a good dozen strokes behind the leaders and did not care a bit about it.

The difference was that Bevans had once been the open champion, 15 years before. They could never take that away from him. But Hugh, whom he believed to be a finer golfer than himself or any other living man, never had.

Ben knew just how Hugh felt about it, and how Hugh's wife, Celia, did. She felt that her husband was not only the best of golfers, but the best of men whether he ever won the championship or not. She had said as much and Ben had heard her, but had Hugh really believed her?

And then there was the matter of approximately $15,000, which is what the championship would be worth in a year to a popular and colorful figure like Hugh.

The Cast of Characters in "45-Minute Champion"

HUGH DELEVAN, who seeks a major golf title and who is facing his usual difficulty in winning it.

BEN BEVANS, Hugh's friend and also in the tourney.

A "CHISELER"

Both drove, and Ben fell in step with Delevan, and growled at him out of the side of his mouth:

"Keep on playing your ball, Hughie. That Tidball's been lucky so far. But he's yellow."

"Here's hoping," said Delevan grimly.

"I never liked him," said Bevans. "The little chiseler. Do you remember that bridge game?"

"What bridge—Oh, you mean four years ago. Ah, well, that's over the dam." Delevan was now almost up to his ball.

"Lay this one up, kid, you can do it."

"Sure, I can do it easy," said Delevan, and added, "if I don't fall down in a swoon."

Bevans and 5000 other interested parties watched him hit a three iron with what seemed effortless precision, well onto the distant green. Bevans, ordinarily not a devout man, found himself offering up an impromptu prayer: Just let him win this one, Oh Lord, for he is a grand and deserving golfer, and only Thou and Hugh and I know what Tidball is.

His mind went back four years to when the talented and unlikeable young Mr. Tidball had first joined the touring pros on the winter circuit.

One of the boy's accomplishments had been contract bridge, which he preferred to play for indecently high stakes.

On this occasion he had been having bad luck, and had recklessly bid a hand to six no-trump. When doubled he had redoubled, apparently with more fury than judgment.

It had seemed clear to Bevans and Delevan, both good bridge players, who were watching, that he was going down one trick. The strength of the hand was a long club suit. Tidball had banged these clubs down, one after the other, with mounting viciousness. When he had finished doing this, the contract, quite miraculously, was made.

"Golly," Hugh had said mildly, 'how'd you ever make that?"

"It was a squeeze," young Tidball had answered in his least pleasant manner," but you wouldn't understand it."

It had been simple, effective and dishonest.

TEARS WIN LENIENCY

Much later that night, Hugh and Ben had paid him a quiet visit in his room. His braggadocio had vanished quickly, and finally they were confronted by a blubbering boy who begged them not to put an end to his promising career as a professional golfer.

"Well," thought Ben Bevans, moodily hooking his own approach into a deep trap, "I suppose that was the time we should have fixed his wagon for him."

"Keep on playing your ball, Hughie. That Tidball's been lucky so far. But he's yellow," Ben growled.

Delevan, a little pink at the jowls, had left the room and Bevans soon joined him. Together they puzzled over the hand, and finally reconstructed it and wrote it down on paper.

Only then had the unusual nature of the "squeeze" become apparent. Tidball had banged down the six good clubs, beginning with the ace and ending with the four. Then, after pulling in this last trick he had simply taken the four of clubs and banged it down all over again!

A moment later a great yell arose from the 16th green. Tidball had sunk a 30-footer and was tired for the lead!

Bevans, before climbing down into the trap, said quietly to his caddie:

"Sam, give the clubs to another boy. I want you to run an errand to the clubhouse—and run it quick and quiet."

Every one who knows the bizarre ending the open championship when old Hugh Delevan won his popular victory.

A few minutes after Hugh and Ben had putted out on the 72nd green (Hugh taking two putts and Ben Bevans three), Tidball came storming down the fast fairway of his unbelievable round.

Two superlatives shots left him 15 feet from the hole on the lightning fast green. He had two putts for a tie and playoff, but so uncanny had been his touch that day, that many of the delirious thousands fully expected him to tap the 15 footer in then and there for the most dramatic victory in the history of the event.

He went about this momentous putt in the methodical somewhat exasperating manner that was habitual with him.

First he crouched over his ball and peered toward the hole.

Then he marched over to the cup, crouched over it and peered in the other direction. ("To see what the ball looks like from there," as some impatient critic had once put it.)

Then he went back to his ball, putted and missed. The ball rolled 20 inches past.

White-faced under his tan, he then took great precautions about the baby putt, tapped it gently, and the ball just stayed out!

BEVANS' PLOT

A certain young reporter, as excited as any one present, knew he should interview some one before writing his story of that finish. But he couldn't interview Delevan, because a hundred people all seemed to be trying to buy Delevan drinks at the same time.

And he couldn't interview Tidball because he didn't dare.

So he approached Ben Bevans, one-time champion, who, far from the backslappers, was enjoying a quiet highball. On Mr. Bevans' face was an expression of great serenity.

"Listen, Ben," blurted the sports writer, "here's my angle on why Tidball three-putted from 15 feet. I claim that it is his putting mannerism of walking up to the hole the way he does. It all takes too long, and in a tough spot like that on the last green, it tightens him up. Doesn't that seem sensible to you?"

"Mebbe so," said Mr. Bevans sagaciously, and that was all the young reporter ever got out of the interview. Bevans would have rather liked to have added (but he never did):

"Well, on that last green he certainly shouldn't have walked over where he could see into the cup. Not when I'd taken the trouble—after I had holed out—to leave the four of clubs in it!"

THE END

Vicki Headlines Globe Revue

Vicki, the vivacious toast of both the East and West Coast fairs as well as of night spots here, there and everywhere, brings novel and eye-popping new dances to the Globe stage show this week.

Vicki

An added attraction on the stage bill will be "The Girl in Blue," who atymies the press-agent's powers of description (in itself a rare recommendation.)

Other lovelies in this burlesque beauty parade will be Joy St. Clair, the dancing Lavodis, Kay Johnson, Kayla Foster and, of course, the 30 Bernardettes.

Comics include Mandy Kay, Harry Ryan, Al Pharr and Irving Benson. And there are, too, John Eaton and his seven Airwave Naval Cadets, and Lorraine and Arthur, dancers.

On the screen are "Little Tough Guys" featuring those ubiquitous "Dead-Enders," and "Wild and Gambling Ship," with Robert Wilcox.

Current Repertory, Newsreel Bills

Now showing on the Repertory screen are "Rose of Washington Square," with Alice Faye, Tyrone Power and Al Jolson, and "Five Came Back," co-starring Wendy Barrie and Chester Morris. At the Newsreel, the Back Bay's other proven-pictures theater, the screen attractions are "Thanks for Everything," with Jack Haley and Adolphe Menjou, and "You Can't Get Away With Murder," with Humphrey Bogart.

Tomorrow through Thursday, the film attractions will be "Come and Get It," with Edward Arnold and Joel McCrae, and "Naughty But Nice," co-starring Dick Powell and Ann Sheridan.

Spanish Dancer on Gayety Bill

Tangia

Tangia's highly touted special, "Dance of the Seven Veils," is something she dreamed up and, she promises, reeks with pep and paprika. Her "Oriental Slave Dance" is another dance novelty Tangia will introduce in her local burlesque debut.

Sharing the stage with her will be Peggy Reynolds, Sonny Lovett, Kanza Vinton and Irma Vogelee, all with new dance divertissements. Heading the comedy contingent are Herbie Faye and Bert Carr, assisted by Bert Grant, Buddy Orlando, Bill Young and Jack Shaw. The 36 Gay Girls make up the well trained chorus ensemble.

Film features are "Five Came Back" and "Behind Prison Gates."

New Normandie, Tremont Films

The screen's outstanding glamour boy and girl, Robert Taylor and Hedy LaMarr, as "Lady of the Tropics," take over Normandie screen today. On the same bill is "$1000 A Touchdown."

On Tremont screen today, Bob Taylor's bride, Barbara Stanwyck, and Joel McCrea, in "Union Pacific," will share the screen with the co-starring Leslie Howard and Wendy Hiller, in George Bernard Shaw's "Pygmalion."

'AIDA' OPENS SAN CARLO'S ENGAGEMENT THURSDAY NIGHT

Norina Greco In Title Role

To the appropriate strains of the triumphal entry in "Aida," the traditional opera opening Fortune Gallo's San Carlo Opera Company will come to the Boston Opera House, Thursday for an eleven-day stay of nine evening performances terminating Saturday night, Dec 2; two Sundayy matinees, Nov. 26 and Dec. 3; two Saturday matinees, Nov. 25 and Dec. 2 and a holiday matinee (Thanksgiving).

The young and attractive Italian dramatic soprano, Norina Greco, heard here for the first time last year, and whom New York and Chicago critics repoit added interest, sings the title role in "Aida." As the captive daughter of the Ethiopian King, conquered by the haughty Egyptians, Miss Greco makes Aida a poignant figure.

Aroldo Lindi as Rhadames, Moslyn Thomas as Amonasro, Harold Kravitt as the High Priest, Richard Wentworth as King of Egypt, Lyuba Senderovna as Amneris, and Charlotte Bruno as the Priestess, complete the principals to appear in Verdi's opera.

The ballet spectacle in the Temple and the Triumphal scenes by the San Carlo Ballet, will be headed by Lydia Arlova, premiere danseuse, and Lucien Prideaux, premier danseur.

"Carmen," the second opera of the series of thirteen (Friday, the 26th), will be sung in French, with Coe Glade as Carmen and Sydney Rayner, (for the past two seasons of the Metropolitan Opera and five years leading tenor of the Opera Comique of Paris) as Don Jose.

Hizi Koyke, most realistic of Cho-Cho-Sans, will be the heroine of Puccini's "Madama Butterfly" Saturday afternoon (Nov. 25), and at night, Lucille Meusel will be heard in the name part of "Lucia di Lammermoor," with Dimitri Onofrei in the tenor role. Ivan Petroff, the baritone presented by Mr. Gallo a year ago, will be the elder Germont in Donizetti's opera.

There will be a Sunday matinee (Nov. 26) with "La Boheme" the program, sung by Bianca Saroya as Mimi and Sydney Rayner, the tenor, cast for his second performance in the part of Rudolph.

In the order of performance, the list during the week from Monday (Nov. 27) through Sunday afternoon (Dec. 3), runs; "La Traviata" (Monday), "Faust" (Tuesday), "Rigoletto" with Petroff (Wednesday), Thanksgiving matinee, "Hansel and Gretel" (sung in English), the fairy opera followed by ballet divertissement, "Viennese Life."

A double bill on the holiday night, offers "Cavalleria Rusticana" and "Pagliacci"; there will be a second performance of "Madame Butterfly" with Koyke (Friday), "Carmen," in French and Coe Glade singing the title role a second time (Saturday matinee), "Il Trovatore" at night, and "The Barber of Seville" the final opera of the engagement (Sunday afternoon), December 3, Ballet Divertissement. "Viennese Life" follows Rossini's comic opera.

The policy of opera at reasonable prices will be ratified by a boxoffice scale ranging from fifty five cent to $2.20. In respect to such policy the San Carlo Opera has, during the 29 years it has toured the United States eight months of every year, recorded some 8500 performances before audiences totalling almost 18,000,000 ,and a box-office intake of more than $20,000,000.

The forthcoming engagement is under the local auspices of the New England Town Hall, Inc. Tickets are on sale both at the Opera House and at the Wilbur box offices.

COE GLADE, grand opera's glamour girl, sings "Carmen" with the San Carlo Opera Company at the Boston Opera House Friday evening.

Designs Costumes For Simone's Show

New Plymouth, Copley Shows

Charles Timblin plays Jeeter Lester in this second visit to Boston of the Kirkland play, based on Erskine Caldwell's novel of poor whites down Georgia way. "Tobacco Road" will remain at the Plymouth for at least two weeks.

Paul Muni, who is giving a magnificent performance in Maxwell Anderson's beautiful play, "Key Largo," will remain a second and final week at the Colonial.

Mr. Muni's King McCloud, who died by a gangster's gun but died nobly, is an elegant portrayal, ranking with his distinguished and memorable screen characterizations of Pasteur, Zola, Juarez.

Jose Ferrer, as the young soldier who chooses to die with his ideals, right or wrong, is perfectly cast There are splendid performances by Ralph Theodore Harold Johnstud, Uta Hagen and Frederic Tozere. Guthrie McClintic's direction is superb.

On the other fist — but equally outstanding in its own field—we have "Du Barry Was a Lady," B. G. DeSylva's smashing new musical, with Cole Porter songs and Bert Lahr and Ethel Merman for co-stars. It goes into its last week at the Shubert tonight.

We loved "Du Barry" and we were not alone. It did capacity business the past week and should this week. Its humor is frequently robustious, to put it mildly, but such a healthy sense of fun pervades the goings-on behind the Shubert's footlights that you should find yourselves highly amused and delightfully entertained.

It's easily the season's best musical and no stars were more happily met than are Lahr and Miss Merman, notably when they duet in "Friendship."

Heading the supporting cast are Hollywood's Phil Regan and Betty Grable and included in it are Benny Baker, Kay Sutton, Hugh Cameron, Johnny Barnes, Geraldine Spreckles, Harold Cromer and Walter Armin. Raoul Pene DuBois' costumes and sets, surrounding chorus-girls that are really and rarely glamorous, are handsome.

"Du Barry Was a Lady" will spend next week in Philadelphia before its Broadway premiere at the 46th Street Theater on Tuesday, Dec. 5.

Ratoff to Direct Next Zorina Film

Zorina, whose Hollywood contract takes her out of the cast of the prospective musical heretofore referred to merely as "the Zorina Show" in the Dwight Deere Wiman office, will soon go before the cameras in "I Was an Adventuress," Twentieth Century-Fox production, Gregory Ratoff has been assigned to direct by Darryl Zanuck.

Hollywood Paragraphs

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 20—Herbert Marshall, who hasn't made a movie since his flyer on the stage with Helen Hayes in "Ladies and Gentlemen" started practicing up on his best camera angles again over the week-end.

Bart, who is very much a favorite with the ladies, goes into "Bill of Divorcement" at RKO which is really adding up to an all-star cast with Maureen O'Hara, Fay Bainter and Adolphe Menjou. Personally, I'm glad he's getting movie minded again. Judging from the Hayes play, the Marshall charm is much more potent on the screen than over the footlights.

Charles Boyer isn't the only actor Hollywood is paging from the war zone. Frank Lloyd is moving heaven and earth to get Will Fiffe, who was so swell in "Rulers of the Sea" and "To The Victor" back here for his first independent picture, "Flying Yorkshireman."

Right now Fiffe is entertaining soldiers in the English barracks and whether or not the government will grant permission for him to return, remains to be seen.

Chatter in Hollywood: Priscilla Lane and Oren Haglund have written "finis" to their two-year romance that had everyone in Hollywood suspecting that they were secretly married.

Kyser Coming To Boston

Kay Kyser and his entire "College of Musical Knowledge" will take over the RKO Boston stage for Thanksgiving week, starting a week from Wednesday, Harry McDonald, New England division manager for the RKO theaters announces.

Kay Kyser

Topping the Kyser aggregation are Ginny Simms, Harry Babbit, Lyman Gandee, "Ish Kabibble" and Sully Mason. A feature of the Kyser show will be his famous musical quiz with the audience participating and being on the receiving end of Kyser diplomas or cash prizes.

Beatty Animal Show at Garden

Clyde Beatty was installed in the Boston Garden today with his assortment of animals, acrobats, clowns and gaudy trappings which go to make up the circus he is putting on here this week.

Feature act of the show, which will appear at the Garden all week except Tuesday, is Clyde's own act, in which, armed with a whip, a chair, and a revolver loaded with blanks, he locks himself in a huge cage with 40 lions, tigers and leopards, then puts the great cats through their paces.

The show is being promoted by the American Legion National Convention Committee, which is raising funds to bring the Legion Convention here next year.

Collector of Internal Revenue Thomas B. Hassett today reminded taxpayers that President Roosevelt has proclaimed next Thursday a federal holiday and all offices of the collector of internal revenue in this district will be closed on that day.

Unwhipped Boy Back in Court

FITCHBURG, Nov. 20 (AP)—A 17-year-old youth came back today before the same judge who unsuccessfully ordered him horsewhipped a year ago—this time to plead guilty to a charge of an attempted attack on a 14-year-old girl.

William Allen, who was placed on probation for two years because his parents refused to heed the alternative horse-whipping sentence in a larceny case, was held in $1000 bail on the attempted attack charge.

Death Ends 46-Day No Fatality Record

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 20 (AP)—Forty-six days without a traffic fatality—a new safety record for cities of 400,000 or more population—ended today with the death of William E. Sheridan, 75.

Milwaukee formerly held the best mark by having no traffic fatalities for 44 days last year. Sheridan was struck by a motor car last Thursday.

HUNT FOR DOLAN CASH IS PRESSED

Agents of the Massachusetts Bonding and Insurance Co. resumed their search in Chicago and St. Louis today for money believed to belong to former City Treasurer Edmund L. Dolan, of Boston, and placed for safekeeping with the late Edward J. O'Hare, dog and race track operator, recently assassinated by gunmen in the Windy City.

Every Chicago bank has been directed to report to State's Attorney Courtney as to whether O'Hare had rented safety deposit boxes.

The Massachusetts Bonding and Insurance Co. is an interested party to the search because it paid the city of Boston about $100,000 on Dolan's bond. Dolan now occupies a cell in the Charles st. jail on a charge of contempt.

Last week investigators found $22,000 in a safety deposit box in the Chicago First National Bank rented by O'Hare in behalf of "John Walter, care of E. J. O'Hare."

The cash, in banknotes of large denomination, was found in two envelopes which bore the names of Dolan's sisters.

"John Walter" was revealed as J. Walter Quinn, who also is serving a two-and-a-half year term with Dolan.

Chicago officials said that a box rented by O'Hare in the Continental National Bank of Chicago last January would be opened today.

Boston After Dark

ONCE OVER LIGHTLY: Johnny Marr, the former Boston College fullback, has hired Hum and Strum to amuse the patrons in his cafe near Quincy sq. . . . If Sheriff Frederick R. Sullivan resigns his school committee membership (which seems certain), then Dr. Patrick J. Foley is seen as the almost certain appointee to the vacated post . . . The doctor was runner-up, with a large vote, to the three winners in the recent election . . . If this appointment does come to pass, it will complete a trilogy for the South Boston doctor which is unique in Boston politics . . . He was appointed to succeed the late Dr. Charles E. Mackey to fill an unexpired term, and was appointed to take the place made vacant when Mayor Maurice J. Tobin, resigned to take the chief executive's job of the city . . . With Bill Cunningham joining Colonel Dave Egan in blasting Harvard for alleged usurpation of New England Ivy League football control, it must be worrying Bill Bingham, the Harvard athletics' boss, a least a little . . . The Cunningham shot this morning was no dud . . . A Dartmouth grad, Bill says an undersized Dartmouth back might someday meet his end on the football sward . . . They'll call it "amateurism," says Bill, but "the word will be murder" . . . Wow! . . . And he blames the Harvard sphere of influence.

NICE OFFICE—A JAIL

GENEVA, N. Y. (AP)—The old city jail again will become a place for safe-keeping. A savings and loan association purchased the building.

TO THE EMPLOYED MAN WHO NEEDS A CASH LOAN

Read how you can borrow $20 to $300 promptly and simply Repay in monthly installments that fit your budget

YOU, like most employed people, probably find that you must sometimes borrow to meet emergencies. If you need only a few dollars for a short time, you get a loan from a friend or relative.

But when you need $50, $100 or $200 you doubtless hesitate to ask others to advance money to you. That's when Household Finance can help you. For Household Finance has a special loan plan for employed men and women faced with urgent money problems.

No endorsers required

To borrow at a bank requires collateral. Or you must ask friends or fellow-workers to endorse your note to act as guarantors in case you are unable to repay your loan. The Household plan spares you this embarrassment.

When you borrow at Household you don't have to ask outsiders to sign your note. We ask for no salary or wage assignment, no stocks or bonds. Loans are made on furniture, car or note. No credit inquiries are made of friends or relatives. You get the money you need privately and promptly.

Repay monthly

You repay your loan in convenient monthly installments. Suppose you need $100. Twelve monthly installments of $9.75 each, for instance, will repay your loan in full. Or, if you wish smaller payments, as little as $6.41 per month for 20 months will repay a $100 loan.

Find the amount of cash you need in the first column of the loan table. Then read across, picking out the monthly payment which fits your budget. See how you can make very small payments if you wish. Or you can pay larger installments and pay up sooner. Note that a $100 loan repaid in four months' instalments, for instance, costs only $6.32.

Ask for information — no obligation

Last year more than 600,000 men and women found the Household Finance Loan Plan a simple, dignified solution to their emergency money problems. In case of sickness or unemployment Household shows the borrower every consideration. Last year Household foreclosed on only one chattel mortgage for each 10,000 loans—an action taken then only as protection against fraud.

Study the loan and payment table. Then phone or visit us for further information without obligation.

This table is based on prompt repayment. Payments may be made in advance of the day they are due, if you wish. Advance payment reduces the cost of your loan proportionately, since you pay charges only for the actual time you have the money. Payments are calculated at Household's rate of 2 ½% per month, which is less than the maximum permitted by the Small Loan Law.

READ THIS GUARANTEE

We guarantee the total amount figured by using this table to be the full amount you will pay with payments are made on schedule. You can't pass if you pay your way ahead of schedule.

Electric Output Hits Peak in N. E.

FRANK D. COMERFORD . . . Chairman of New England Power Associates and subsidiaries, stressed their importance today in reviewing operating results of the companies . . . He pointed to an increase of 22 per cent in kilowatt hours sold during the nine months through September as a measure of business improvement in the New England area . . . Adding it largely accounted for a consolidated gross earnings gain of $2,804,885 shown by the association and subsidiaries . . . It is axiomatic that power companies can only show such wide upturns in output and gross when industrial and commercial customers are themselves experiencing rapid expansion . . .

NET EARNINGS . . . Results of the New England Power Association and subsidiaries for the first nine months were favorable . . . After allowing for preferred dividends per share common earnings amounted to 53 cents . . . In 1938 earnings failed to cover preferred requirements for the same period by $353,935 . . . Transference of increased gross to net was restricted by higher costs . . . Lack of rainfall during the summer caused an increase in steam generating costs . . . Taxes continued to march higher and all round costs of doing business rose . . .

TICKER TALK . . . Superheater is not expected to do much more than cover the 50 cents a share declared on the common this year . . . Reason given to us is that the pickup in rail equipment buying has not yet been strongly felt in the locomotive field . . . It is most important to the company . . . Combustion Engineering, a non-consolidated subsidiary, is enjoying an increase in orders . . . But it is not expected to pay anything this year . . . Parent's statement, therefore, will not benefit . . . Sears Roebuck followers are boasting their favorite will show about $5.50 a share for 1939 . . .

STOCK MARKET . . . Apologists are listing three factors as responsible for failure of prices to improve with business . . . 1—European uncertainties . . . 2—Fear of new governmental controls if the U. S. is involved . . . 3—Fresh stirring of conflict in the utility industry . . . The first is a bit frayed, the second too far fetched or remote and the third hardly new . . . Fear of one kind or another is always with the markets . . . Particularly when popular hopes or opinion are being thwarted . . . The market is working out its own destiny . . . As it always has . . . Even back in 1916 when it behaved much as it is now.

• • •

BITS O'GOSSIP . . . Great Northern preferred is said to be underpriced . . . With $1 a share expected this year the argument seems sound . . . Prolonged war means continued heavy ore shipments . . . Earnings booster par excellence for the road . . . McKellar Stores should earn around $1.35 a share this year . . . American Brake Shoe's incoming orders are expected to slacken somewhat . . . But nonetheless the company is reported to have anticipated requirements a year ahead for steel and ferro-manganese . . . Evidently a serious letdown is not visioned by company officials . . .

Frank D. Comerford

PoundSterling Rate Improves

NEW YORK, Nov. 20 (AP)

The British pound started off the week's foreign exchange dealings today at a fast forward clip.

Sterling ran up 2½ cents to $3.92½ in terms of the dollar and carried the French franc along for an advance of .01¾ of a cent at 2.23 cents. The belga also improved but the guilder was a little lower and the Swiss franc unchanged.

Despite improvement in the spot rate, the discount on the pound deliverable in the future continued to widen. Ninety-day sterling could be purchased 6½ cents below the spot price, against 6¼ cents over the week-end.

UNIONS WARNED BY 'TRUST-BUSTER'

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20 (INS)—The federal government's chief "trust-buster," Asst. Atty.-Gen. Thurman Arnold, today notified American labor that unions engaging in unreasonable restraints of trade will be prosecuted as vigorously as lawless corporations.

Principles applicable to unions are the same as those applied to other groups which enjoy special protection by law, Arnold said. Though investors may combine into a corporation, farmers into a cooperative and labor into a union, he declared the government is duty bound to prevent the illegal use of such rights of association.

He made public the government's view in a letter to the secretary of the Central Labor Union of Indianapolis, in reply to an inquiry concerning application of the anti-trust laws to unions.

Steels Lead Quiet Rally In Market

NEW YORK, Nov. 20 (AP)—With steels in front, the stock market today pushed up fractions to more than a point.

Dealings, while a bit easier than in Saturday's slow-motion proceedings, seldom speeded up the ticker tape.

The general run of business news still provided the principal market prop, brokers reported. Some disappointment was evident in boardrooms over the recent somewhat mystifying reluctance of the market to catch up with industry.

Bonds, commodities and foreign securities markets were about steady.

Financial quarters studied the survey of the magazine Steel which said that, while steel shipments were catching up with orders, backlogs were slow to decline despite record-breaking production.

"Slightly better deliveries are available on some products," it was added, "including plates and shapes. Backlogs of other items extend two to four months, and the bulk of new business necessarily is for next-quarter delivery.

U. S. COMMODITY PRICES LEVEL OFF

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20 (INS) Finding prices of some commodities have risen without just cause while other recent price rises have "leveled off," the anti-monopoly committee has declared there is evidence price movements resulting from the European war are entering a secondary upward phase, in which speculation is playing a less significant part.

Adjustment of commodity prices to war conditions, it added, is apparently entering a transitional phase, with many of the sharp speculative increases, such as those for sugar, hogs and tin which characterized the early weeks of September, now largely offset.

The analysis was the second summary of the price situation issued by the group, also known as the temporary national economic committee, which several weeks ago was instructed by President Roosevelt to maintain a "constant eye" on prices, to prevent war profiteering.

PRICES ARE CITED

It found that during the past two weeks wholesale prices generally have shown little change, the Bureau of Labor Statistics index declining from 79.4 on Oct. 21 to 79.3 on Nov. 11.

Raw materials and finished products, at their highest point Oct. 21, declined materially by Nov. 11.

Between Oct. 14 and Nov. 11, however, the committee found that raw material prices, first to react from their sharp initial upturn, showed signs of resuming their increase the index rising from 71.6 to 72.5.

Farm commodities and textiles have increased notably, while chemicals and drugs have maintained quite consistent price levels.

TEXTILE, FIBER UP

Super-phosphate, a basic fertilizer material, advanced in prices $1 per ton, though there was no recorded change in price for its two ingredients, both produced in this country.

Cattle feed has again risen materially, partly because of midwest drought.

The most spectacular change in the textile fiber market was a further increase in the price of silk, which on Nov. 15, was $3.38 per pound, compared with the year's low mark of $1.83 on Jan. 6.

The committee noted as "one very significant development," not reflected in price statistics, the widespread search for substitute products to evade staple commodities price rises.

Wilkie Fears New Utility Baiting Era

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Nov. 20 (AP)—"Another period of utility-baiting" that would hinder financing a utility expansion program in the South was voiced by Wendell L. Willkie, president of Commonwealth & Southern, following criticism of the Alabama Power Co. by Director David E. Lilienthal of the Tennessee Valley Authority.

Lilienthal accused the Alabama utility, A. C. & S. subsidiary, of "antagonism and obstruction" toward co-operative rural electrification in a speech Saturday at Lafayette, Ala., opening the Tallapoosa electric project.

Willkie, in a prepared statement, yesterday expressed surprise at Lilienthal's attack and added:

"It is certainly to be hoped that we are not in for another period of utility-baiting and attack. . . . Investors will not put their money in a business which is subject to constant attack by important public officials . . .

"Mr. Lilienthal had never discussed this project (Tallapoosa) or any other rural electrification program in Alabama with me or any of the officials of Alabama Power Co. Until we read of his speech we did not know that he assumed jurisdiction over such utility operations throughout the South and outside the TVA area."

The area to be served by the Tallapoosa Co-operative, he pointed out, was 100 miles south of TVA operations and is not served by the authority. Commonwealth & Southern companies, Willkie continued, "were spending millions annually" in building rural lines.

CAPT. TORBY MACDONALD of Harvard should flash brilliantly in the Stadium on Saturday against Yale . . . Macdonald looked his old self as he raced through the first period of the contest with New Hampshire . . . Torby displayed all of his former speed and ability to carry the ball, and also remarkable accuracy in tossing forward passes . . . With Macdonald going on high, Yale will face one of the most difficult tasks of its Fall campaign.

Charley Spreyer, who played so well for Harvard during the time Macdonald was out of the game with an injured ankle, will also be in the Yale game . . . Spreyer has been one of the pleasing surprises at Cambridge . . . Dick Harlow's vastly improved eleven should win from Yale . . . Harvard was slow in rounding into form due to the fact it has so many sophomores in its lineup . . . Now that the team is clicking it gets better with each game.

Yale is stronger than it has been in recent games . . . Yale teams always do their best playing against Harvard, and so one may expect to see a hard fought contest in the Stadium on Saturday . . . I do not believe Harlow will make any announcement of his retirement from Harvard football following the Yale game . . . Dick will have almost his entire team back next Fall and also for 1941 . . . Harvard has a more severe schedule ahead, but it will give Harlow an opportunity to prove his merit as a coach to the entire country . . . Harlow would not care to step aside in favor of another coach now that the big football show at Cambridge is about to start.

Cornell Greatest Team in the East

CORNELL PROVED it has the greatest football team in the East when it handed Dartmouth a crushing defeat by a score of 35 to 6 at Hanover, N. H. . . . Cornell outplayed Dartmouth at every department of the game . . . The statistics give an idea of the remarkable ability of the team from Ithaca . . . Cornell completed eight out of 14 passes for a gain of 115 yards . . . On ground plays, Cornell picked up 327 yards . . . Cornell displayed a fine defense against the forward pass . . . Dartmouth was able to complete only one of 19 attempted passes.

Cornell used a reverse play with Co-Captain Mal Baker carrying the ball that was particularly effective . . . The tackle was moved out of the way quickly, and the end was rather helpless as single handed he would face the on rushing Cornell players . . . The task of the ball carrier was made quite easy.

It was hinted at Hanover that Cornell might be in a receptive mood if made a Rose Bowl bid . . . If Cornell should make the trip to California, it will uphold the football prestige of the East . . . The team is composed of big men who not only know football, but who also possess exceptional individual brilliance.

Pat Hanley rates a bow for the splendid showing of his Boston University eleven against Boston College . . . Pat had a young, inexperienced team at the opening of the Fall football campaign . . . He has brought his eleven a long ways . . . Pat is one of the most capable coaches in the country, and with top material wouldn't ask for favors from anybody.

Almost over night Dr. Eddie Anderson of Iowa has established himself as one of the country's foremost football coaches . . . Dr. Anderson gained new laurels when Iowa came from behind to defeat the Golden Gophers from Minnesota by 13 to 9 . . . Dr. Anderson was a great coach when at Holy Cross, but failed to get the national recognition that has come to him since he worked his miracle at Iowa.

Henry Chmielewski, Polish middleweight, will have Red Lewis of New York as an opponent in a ten-round bout at Portland tonight. Chmielewski has beaten Conny Welsh and other good boxers in Portland, and will try to add the hard hitting Watson to his list of conquests.

Jimmy Mede has signed Abe Denner of this city and Joe Ghnoully of New York for a ten-round bout at Fall River on Thursday night . . . Ghnoully recently made a good fight against Pat Foley in Fall River . . . The small towns continue to set the pace in the revival of boxing.

There will be another set of trial bouts in the American-Record All-America diamond belt championships at the Arena tonight . . . With bouts in eight open classes and in two novice classes, the fans should witness close to four hours of stirring action.

Paul Bowser believes that in Bobby Managoff he has discovered one of the most promising young wrestlers to bob to the front in recent years . . . Bobby's father was a famous wrestler, and he has schooled his son in the fine points of the mat game . . . With a victory to his credit over Dan O'Mahony, Managoff believes he will continue his drive towards a championship bout with Steve Casey by knocking off Marvin Westenberg, the former Shadow, at the Arena on Wednesday night.

There was a touch of romance to the closing of the New England racing season at Narragansett Park . . . Miss Mary Corinha of Winthrop, attached to Billy Ames' publicity office at the track, announced she was getting married to Ray Yerian of Montana, an assistant starter . . . Their honeymoon will be spent in Florida . . . Yerian will be with Starter Buddy Wingfield at Tropical Park . . . Miss Corinha is a Winthrop girl, and before becoming associated with Narragansett Park was with the Boston Garden.

AMATEUR CHAMPS FIGHT FOR ALL-AMERICA BERTHS

By RINGSIDE

There will be more brilliant ring action at the Arena tonight when the second set of trial bouts in the American-Record All-America diamond belt championships are staged with the cooperation of the Irish-American A. A.

The first bout will get under way at 8 o'clock, and from then until almost midnight heavy socks will be flying through the air.

There will be bouts in 10 classes, and eight open championship classes, and 135 and 160 pound divisions for the entire novices.

The novice classes have made a distinct hit with the fans. The youngsters toss punches with reckless abandon, and what they lack in boxing, for in they more than make up for in their earnestness and desire to win.

Tom Kinsella has instructed all boxers competing tonight to report at the Arena at 6 o'clock for physical examinations.

The entry list tonight includes the names of boxers who starred in the recent Golden Glove and inter-city bouts. These youngsters are now eager to qualify in the All-America trials so that they may compete in the New England finals at the Garden on December 11 at the Garden.

The survivors in the New England finals will take part in All-Eastern finals at the Garden on December 18. They will battle the leading amateur boxers from New York, Albany, Syracuse and Baltimore.

Then will follow the grand national finals at San Francisco on January 25. New England boxers are eager to win places on the Eastern team that will make the trip to California.

There will be popular prices of 55 cents and $1.10 for tonight's bouts. The large seating capacity of the Arena will give all who wish to do so an opportunity to take in this show.

Baltimore Girl Wins Duckpin Title

BALTIMORE, Nov. 20 (AP)—Ida Simmons of Baltimore won her fifth consecutive Chesapeake sweepstakes women's duckpin bowling tournament last night, rolling a 1243 for a 10-game block.

Freda Griggs of Hartford, Conn., was second with 1228, and Katherine Vick of Norfolk, Va., was third with 1227.

MacMitchell Favored In IC4A Harrier Race

NEW YORK, Nov. 20 (AP)—Approximately 130 limber-legged youngsters, who must brave the elements and jeers of critics who call them "the union suit brigade," sought today one of Marathon running's brightest baubles—the intercollegiate 4-A cross country championship.

Running over hill and dale in Van Cortlandt Park, approximately 29 of them were expected to chase Leslie MacMitchell, 19-year-old New York University sophomore, to the wire.

If MacMitchell doesn't win this 31st annual five-mile test, the track experts will be just as dumbfounded as the football experts have been nearly every Saturday.

Leslie MacMitchell

For this hardiest of Gotham's harriers has proved he has the stuff of which champions are made. Blue ribbons denoting the public school championship of New York city, the national interscholastic title, the I-C 4-A freshman crown and the metropolitan varsity laureis wave from his chest.

But Leslie must polish off a notable field of rivals—including one lad who doesn't know how it feels to wind up second in this race. He is Billy Smith of Penn State, who won the race as a freshman two years ago and last year ran the East's best varsity men into a froth.

Dr. Naismith Rallies

ONE OUT OF 10 GRIDDERS HAS 'ATHLETE'S HEART'

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Nov. 20—Next season's football players may be made to undergo a new type of examination to determine whether they will develop "athlete's heart" from violent physical exercise.

Dr. Dan G. Stine of University of Missouri, Columbia, Mo., described today before a preliminary session of the Southern Medical Association's annual meeting a simple test which measures the ability of an individual's heart to compensate for the severe strain put on it.

DAMAGE TO HEART

About 10 per cent of a group of 400 athletes examined were found to have developed chronic enlargement of the heart as shown in the tests, he declared.

All these vigorous young men show either specific damage to the heart or inability of the heart to return to normal rest after exercise due to damage to the vagus nerve which controls the heart, lungs, stomach and abdominal organs. Some also had defects in the heart valves.

The test consists of placing a stethoscope with a long rubber tube on the chest.

Then as the person alternately stands and squats to his heels—an exercise which wears out even the best trained athlete very quickly—the doctor listens to the increase of his heart rate and the rapidity with which it returns to normal when he is exhausted.

The heart of a normal person eats about 75 times per minute. The heart of a trained athlete will rise quickly by from 10 to 30 beats per minute while in an untrained athlete the rise is from 30 to 50 beats per minute.

2500 PHYSICIANS ATTEND

In a person with athlete's heart this velocity increases beyond the normal control level of about 120 beats per minute, seemingly without being held in check by the vagus nerve, then comes back to normal very slowly after exercise.

Dr. Stine declared that he believed the test to be one "which research done will give definite information regarding the ability of the heart to cope with work."

The association will celebrate a third of a century of activity in promoting early use of scientific discoveries in medicine by practicing physicians throughout the country. Approximately 2500 physicians were expected to attend this week's meeting.

Easy Win Over Wildcats May Hurt Harvard for Yale

By DAVE GLUECK

Harvard's 46-0 pre-Yale breather with New Hampshire may prove a boomerang and let the regulars down for their climax battle with the Elis. Coach Sauer's Wildcats were so outclassed that they looked like tame tabbies against the Crimson A team that scored four times in the first quarter. At that the Harlow men weren't blocking or tackling with the efficiency they demonstrated against Army, and, at the start of the second half, when the first team returned to play, this was even more noticeable.

TOO EASY FOR REGULARS

After four hard games, a touch as soft as the White Mountain boys is liable to damage a good team more than a hard fighting major opponent. Injuries are just as possible in an easy game.

The worst effect of Saturday's romp will be on the starting team. These boys played a scant 20 minutes, when most of them were used to going the distance.

With scrimmage out of the question this week they will meet Yale after what amounts to a fortnight lay-off. Naturally there will be lots of hard work during the next four practices, but it won't be live contact. So when the boys line up for the season's final they may find themselves a little out of touch with the real thing.

PROVES "TORBY" READY

No one realizes this better than Dick Harlow, and his first words after the game were:

"We have a lot of preparation to do for Yale. This game proved only that Torby is in top shape. He is up both mentally and physically."

Everyone else on the squad, with the possible exception of Don Lowry, will be ready for the boys in blue, so the coaches won't have to consider injuries in figuring out who are the 11 best men. But they're still left with a difficult choice and a new Harvard situation.

It's been a long time since Soldiers Field supported more good material than would fit into one backfield, yet that is just the present case.

With all the boys off the doctors list, there are five good men fighting for the three ball-carrying positions.

HEADACHE FOR COACHES

Spreyer played the first quarter Saturday at bucking back, while Macdonald ran from tail. Later when Macdonald left the game, Spreyer shifted to tail, and made room for Heiden at bucking back.

Lee played a fine game at wingback in place of "Jiffy Joe" Gardella, who was held out with a leg injury, but Joe was in there again this afternoon, making it hard for the coaches to decide the A team quartet.

This keen competition for positions among the starting eleven will do a lot towards counteracting Saturday's let down, and the chances are that Harlow will juggle the boys with this partly in mind. Since all five men have played at least two different backfield positions, the possible combinations are numerous.

SUBS SHOW LITTLE

The Crimson second team had its first and last showing when they spelled the regulars against New Hampshire. Harlow said, "they were fighting for their lives all the time they were in there," but from the stands it looked more like a round of blind man's bluff.

Very few of the subs could carry out their assignments, and never did they seem to do so on the same play.

Joel Ferris, Tom Lacey, Bobby James and Art Rowe showed possibilities, but the Harvard mentor must be very thankful for a freshman team that could lick Yale.

EAGLES RISK MUCH IN FACING KANSANS

Frank Leahy and his Boston College football gang, with an eye trained on the Dec. 2 date with the traditional rival, Holy Cross, rolls into practice this week for Saturday's clash with the Wildcats of Kansas State.

Scheduling the Kansas Staters may or may not have been a wise move on the part of the "powers that be" at the Heights, but Saturday night will tell the tale.

However, it's a foregone conclusion that the burly Westerners who this season have waded through a terrific schedule in fine respectable style, will give the Eagles a busy 60 minutes. Had the team which Wes Fry coaches been able to triumph over a not so strong Iowa State team instead of losing 10-0 last Saturday, Boston College quite likely would have found itself the underdog in the pre-game selections.

LISTED AS DOUBTFUL

The week before the Iowa State game, the Wildcats who, after decisively trimming rival Kansas University, 27-6, seemed headed for great heights, when outplayed and outfought the famous Cowboys of Oklahoma University before going down, 13-10, in the face of a late game rally.

That game stamped the Fry team as "some ball club," but the about face and consequent loss to Iowa State again places the Kansans in "the doubtful class."

The K Staters have been tremendously handicapped most of the season by the loss of Elmer "The Great" Hackney. Hackney is the fullback, who last year earned a load of All-American honors by holding Kansas State together with one of the greatest individual efforts football has ever produced.

MUCH AT STAKE

The "Hacker" severely injured a knee in the 20-0 victory which has team secured over Colorado in the second game on its schedule. The hurt has kept him out of action since, and quite obviously weakened Kansas State. Hackney will probably make the trip East, but his participation against Boston College is very doubtful.

The game may be just the tonic the Eagles need to revitalize themselves for the Holy Cross game—then again the known power which the westerners are bringing along may be too much for the Leahymen. A Boston College defeat Saturday would not only be detrimental to the record gate expected Dec. 2, but quite likely to the win chances of the Eagles against the Cross.

In preparation for the coming of Kansas State Mentor Leahy will hold as many hours of scrimmage as he possibly can this week. After the 19-0 conquest of Boston University last week Leahy said, "I think the team can still stand some contact work, so don't be surprised if we have a scrimmage Monday.

Park Co-Champs Plan Playoff

Boston's Park Department football co-champions, St. Lazarus of East Boston and Codmans of Dorchester, have not hung up their moleskins yet, though the season closed officially when they tied 6-all in their playoff before 25,000 in a Sunday game at Fenway Park.

Both teams are holding blackboard drills tonight with a view toward replaying their tie next Sunday, provided they can get Fenway Park again.

Said Bill Mullen, Park impresario:

"It's up to the boys themselves. If they want to play off, it's all right with me. But as far as I'm concerned, the season's closed."

Managers of the opposing clubs were in a huddle after the game. Both were eager to settle the question of supremacy, and promised to give their answer in a day or two.

But this time they have an eye to the gate. No admission was charged yesterday, but the boys couldn't help figuring how much coin of the realm would pour into their coffers if the $25,000 customers had paid even 25 cents a head.

Meanwhile, St. Brigid's of South Boston, CYO champion, has a standing challenge to either or both for Greater Boston amateur supremacy.

It was a most interesting game, and the 25,000 spectators came away delighted with the play.

Form Runs True For Score Pickers

Once more Lady Luck was kind to the Boston American football pickers, making up for the previous week's upsets on last Saturday's games.

Frank Moynihan, season's leader in percentage, maintained his margin with an errorless afternoon, but Herb Finnegan moved up toward the top with a similar faultless selection sheet.

The other department members were pretty even, with Jack Conway, Bill Grimes, Will Connell and Dave Glueck wrong on two games each, and Fred Lane making three errors.

The Monday Morning Quarterback

By BILL GRIMES

From this locale, the outcomes of New England college games on Saturday were according to Hoyle, with two exceptions, Amherst's setback by Williams and Vermont's victory over Middlebury.

To this corner, the Lord Jeffs were favored over the Purple but Harvey Potter, a senior, who made his first appearance in the first line up in three seasons, crossed us up. With Williams leading by the scant margin of one point, Amherst drove down the field in the fourth period and was well on its way to what would have been the winning touchdown. But Potter intercepted a Lord Jeffs pass and raced 82 yards for a touchdown which gave the Purple a 16 to 8 win.

The Vermont Catamounts were the under-dogs in the final game over the Green Mountain championship but sparked on a 70-yard run by Johnny Spasyk on the second play of the game, they came through with a 21 to 0 victory and took the title.

Although Amherst and Middlebury were the only New England upsets, Wesleyan, champions of the Little Three, had a close call with Trinity, for Jack Blott's Cardinals were trailing 7 to 13 at the start of the final quarter. Then, they turned on the pressure and pushed across no less than three touchdowns.

• • •

Holy Cross and Cornell took more liberties with Carnegie Tech and Dartmouth than the experts predicted, while Harvard and Brown had the New Hampshire and Connecticut State University representatives out on their feet long before the final whistle sounded.

The Elis put up a stiff fight against the Tigers until the final quarter. They were leading 7 to 0 and indications pointed to a tremendous upset, particularly after Yale had taken the ball from Princeton inches from the goal line.

But, after that notable achievement, Lady Luck deserted "Ducky" Pond's charges and the Tigers came from behind to win 13 to 7.

ELI LINE FAILS

After they had taken the ball on downs, shortly after the beginning of the fourth quarter, the Elis' line didn't give Hovey Seymour sufficient protection and his punt from the end zone was partially blocked. Then, the Tigers roared down and tied up the ball game.

A draw would have been a moral victory for Yale but instead they went down to defeat when Freddie Burr, with almost the entire Princeton line charging in on him, when he faded back to pass, threw the pigskin right into the arms of Le Rice, the Tiger tackle. Then, two plays later, Dick Wells, the pride of Marblehead, scooted through the Elis for the winning touchdown.

With Vito Ananis again in the role of the star, Boston College beat Boston University by a margin of three touchdowns, the Cambridge veteran accounting for all 19 points.

The Eagles-Terriers game was a "natural." There wasn't a counter attraction of any consequence east of Worcester. But, and despite of the fine build up the game received, less than 12,000 trekked to Fenway Park for this tilt.

No college can function financially if its followers are "shoppers" and judging from the slim crowds which have turned out to watch the Eagles this fall, Boston College enthusiasts are waiting for the Holy Cross game.

With Co-Capt. Ronnie Cahill, Si Titus and Jack Whelan on the hospital list, Holy Cross gave Carnegie Tech a thorough going over Saturday.

It's been more than two seasons since any eleven has scored three touchdowns on the Skibos. But the Holy Cross power house, despite the fact that two of its greatest stars, Cahill and Titus didn't play, scored 21 points.

PURPLE SCORES SENSATIONAL

But for the touchdown runs of Joe Osmanski and Tommy Sullivan in the first period, Coach Joe Sheehetaki would have been obliged to use Ronnie Cahill, who is still suffering from the pummelling he received during the Temple game.

Due to the fact the Skibos are terrific blockers, it was a break for Holy Cross that Ronnie Cahill was not called into action.

The three Holy Cross touchdowns were scored on sensational runs. Joe Osmanski raced 45 yards for the first tally, Tommy Sullivan covered 55 scoring the second and Osmanski's second touchdown was a 24-yard gallop.

Osmanski and Sullivan were headlined after Saturday's game, but on their runs they'd never have reached the scrimmage line but for the great blocking contributed by their teammates.

On his first touchdown run, Osmanski swept around his left flank behind almost a solid wall of interferers. Frankie Saba, Tommy Sullivan, Bruno Malinowski and Jack Bolgan escorted Osmanski around the left end and then Joe cut, after going down the sidelines for about 10 yards, and started to outrun Merlyn Condit but to no avail. However, just as the Skibo set himself to take a shot at Osmanski, Jack Fitzgerald, the Holy Cross sophomore tackle, hit Condit with a perfect block and Joe was in the clear.

SHOULD BE A PIP

On Sullivan's 55-yard touchdown gallop, Big Jim Turner, who could play on any man's ball club, took out two Skibos with one block, after the North Andover sophomore had maneuvered his way into the open on a sweep around Kari Striegel.

Osmanski's second touchdown was around the Skibo's right flank and it required some solid blocking to shake him free before he darted down the sideline and then cut into the center of the field and over the line.

Despite the setback by L. S. U. Holy Cross is entitled to be rated with the best college elevens in the country. The Crusaders are big, deep and have a powerful running attack and a sound passing game.

And there isn't a club in the land but would have trouble getting its running attack to function against the Crusaders.

So, with Boston College displaying marked improvement weekly, and Holy Cross boasting of victories over Manhattan, Georgia, Brown, Colgate, Temple and Carnegie Tech, the Crusader-Eagle battle on Dec. 2 at Fenway Park will be the banner game of the East.

Better Umpiring Is Goal of Sisler

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 20 (AP)—The cry of "Kill the umpire" because of poor decisions will be raised less frequently at semi-pro games under the plans of George H. Sisler, commissioner of the National Semi-Pro Congress.

Sisler announced today that umpires' associations would be characterized in each of the states in an effort to improve officiating

Top Games Spice East Gridirons

Whether of not Easterners approve the Presidential Thanksgiving proclamation, they'll have to admit it added a very vital game to this week's seaboard gridiron schedule according to the Associated Press.

Pennsylvania and Cornell, the Eastern leader, usually play the last Thursday in November, but they've moved their traditional battle to Saturday of this week, much to the delight of Philadelphia fans.

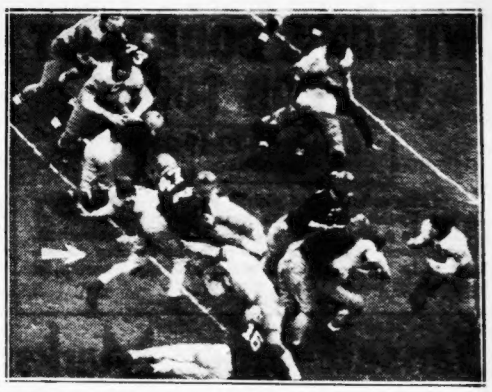
Cornell, Victor last week over Dartmouth by a lop-sided 35-6 score, is expected to clinch the "Ivy Championship" over a Penn team that still is shuddering over the furious antics of Tommy Harman, the Michigan marauder.

But there are other games to attract attention of Eastern fans Saturday.

Once-mighty Pitt, beaten Saturday by Nebraska, plays Penn State, tied Saturday by Army, 14-14; Princeton, the champion of the Big Three, plays a weak Navy team; and the Harvard-Yale game, in which past performances mean nothing, is offered again in a renewal that should add another exciting chapter to the rivalry.

In the only major bit of intersectional warfare, Boston College, 19-0 victor over its city rival, Boston U. last Saturday, meets Kansas State of the Big Six at Boston.

Otherwise in the East, Carnegie Tech, beaten by Holy Cross 21-0 Saturday, takes on Duquesne, idle last week. Lehigh and Lafayette tangle at Bethlehem, and George Washington plays Bucknell at Washington.



SHERIDAN RIDES AGAIN—Halfback Sheridan of Notre Dame, indicated by arrow, whirls through right tackle for a nine-yard gain to help beat Northwestern, 7 to 0. Defensive left end is poorly blocked and makes desperate stretch to grab runner, but latter's power shakes him clear and other good blocks help.

FLIGHT THAT FAILED—Buist Warren, Tennessee halfback, is grabbed in midair and slammed to the turf by a Vanderbilt lineman. Tennessee won, 13 to 0, to maintain its perfect record, unbeaten, untied and unscored on, and with 21 straight victories to its credit.

POWER PLAY ENDS AS PASS

OUT ON the Pacific coast, Tex Oliver of Oregon is causing plenty of trouble with plays like this. It starts as a power drive around right end from a balanced line. It winds up with a long pass to back 3, who has sneaked out into the open while the opposition is being sucked in by the concentration of power at the flank. (The dotted line shows the path of the ball and the ball-carrier.)

Ananis Expected To Lead Scorers

Although he couldn't score in his final game, Capt. Sam Hammerstrom of Union College wound up his collegiate football career in a blaze of glory and with the 1939 eastern individual scoring championship in his grasp, according to Associated Press statistics.

Instead of ploughing through for the touchdown that beat Rochester and kept Union undefeated, Hammerstrom changed his role and passed for the score. Nevertheless he finished the season with 13 touchdowns and eight extra points for a total of 86 points. Bill Sheridan of Clarion (Pa.) Teachers, who finished his season's work a week earlier, placed second with 81 points.

The only threat to Hammerstrom's leadership comes from Vito Ananis of Boston College, who scored all the Eagles' 19 points against Boston University to move into a third-place tie with Ray McLean of St. Anselm. Each has 61 points and Ananis still has two games to go.

Gansett Close Marks End of 181-Day Grind

PAWTUCKET, R. I., Nov. 20—As Hasty Wire won the eighth race at Narragansett Park last Saturday the curtain fell on a New England racing season that has run continuously through 181 racing days since April 22.

Narragansett opened the season with a 19-day spring session that exceeded all expectations, ran through a 30-day summer meet that was tops of all the time to date, then swung into the home stretch with an 18-day meet plus a six-days' extension to send the cash customers and 'Gansett stockholders back into winter quarters with a smile and plenty of hot-stove-league material.

Racing of exceptional quality sustained interest from early spring to late fall. The 'Gansett policy of $1200 minimum purses attracted a surplus of horses of excellent quality. Rich stake events brought the nation's best to Pawtucket.

The spring meeting, which opened on April 22, supplied many interesting contests. A four-year-old filly, Be Blue, came unheralded out of the Southwest to win the $5000 added Spring Handicap on opening day.

The victory of R. A. Coward's Be Jabbers in the $5000 added Portsmouth Handicap on April 29, making it two in a row for fillies, was equally unexpected. Clodion's surprise victory in the $5000 added Bristol Handicap and Pagliacci's thrilling stretch drive to win the first running of the Newport Handicap were other features of the 19-day spring meeting.

The return of Challedon to the scene of his first triumph overshadowed other standout events that starred the summer meeting. W. L. Brann sent his great colt here to clinch his claim to the title of champion horse of the year. Challedon achieved this beyond dispute by scoring in the $25,000 added Narragansett Special on Sept 2.

Other sparkling performances turned in during the summer meeting were by such stars as Olney, Porter's Mite, El Chico, Sun Egret, Rough Time, Bala Ormont, Preceptor II and Ciencia.

The riding highlight of the season was furnished by Apprentice W. L. Taylor, who on Nov. 4, in sensational fashion, drove five winners under the wire.

Extension of the meeting from Nov. 11 to Nov. 18 was applied for at the request of many horsemen, and to allow the association to make its usual contribution to worthy Rhode Island charities. From the profits of two days' racing, Nov. 13 and 14, the approximate sum of $38,000 became available to a number of Rhode Island charities.

War May Hurt College Sports

OMAHA, Neb., Nov. 20 (AP) — War may force curtailment of collegiate athletics, Rowland Haynes, president of Omaha University and the Association of Urban Universities said in an address for delivery here today.

"I am one of those who believe that there is real educational value in competitive athletics," he explained. "And yet I am one of those who recognize as many others do that if we are short of money there are other things which are more important in college than athletics.

"Athletics are good but they are not the most important thing in college. If we can afford them we should have them. If we have to make a rigid selection they may have to be curtailed."

'BRAIN BOWL' GAME FOR SLIPPERY ROCK

SLIPPERY ROCK, Pa., Nov. 20 (AP)—The bang-up Slippery Rock football team, the champion of Pennsylvania teachers' colleges, which has won more games than any other leading Eastern college this season, seemed assured of a "Brain Bowl" set-to today.

Plans for a post-season game with the Maryville, Mo., teachers, who have a record of 18 straight wins, went askew Saturday when the Westerners announced seven of their stars would leave for national guard training Nov. 24, the day before the proposed contest.

LOUISIANA INTERESTED

However, E. A. Davis, Maryville athletic director, said he was trying to get the players excused from national guard camp to play Nov. 25.

It is also possible, he said, that Maryville could play on Dec. 2—which is all right with Slippery Rock.

The St. Joseph, Mo., Junior Chamber of Commerce, sponsor of the "Brain Bowl" tilt, made known that if the Bearcats couldn't make it, some other teachers college would be invited to play Slippery Rock at St. Joseph.

While the unbeaten and untied Rockets were casting about for a sure "brain bowl" opponent, the Louisiana State Normal eleven sent out word they were interested —provided they win their two remaining games.

The Louisiana squad has won nine and leads the Southern Intercollegiate Athletic Ass'n standings with five conference triumphs.

COACH 24 YEARS ON JOB

The Rckets have chalked up 202 points to their eight opponents' 20. Their season wind-up Saturday was a 54-0 whitewash of the California, Pa., teachers, which came as a "birthday gift" to N. Kerr Thompson, Slipery Rock coach for 24 years, who was 51 that day.

'Gansett Handle $26,468,776

PAWTUCKET, R. I., Nov. 20 (AP)—Narragansett race track reported today the pari-mutuel handle for the 73-day racing season ended Saturday amounted to $26,468,776, compared with the $24,362,571 handle for the 65-day meeting last year.

The state's share was $926,407.

Double Record Set by Lash

NEWARK, N. J., Nov. 20 (AP)—Don Lash, fleet-footed Indiana state policeman, laid aside his motorcycle long enough to register his sixth consecutive triumph in the national senior A .A. U. cross-country championship in record-smashing time at Branch Brook Park.

Lash covered the 10,000-meter course (approximately 6¼ miles) in 32 minutes, 26 seconds, to eclipse his own former record by 11 seconds. He finished 20 yards in front of Gregory Rice of South Bend, Indiana, national intercollegiate crosscountry champion at Notre Dame last year. Rice was clocked in 32.30, also shattering Lash's old mark of 32.37, set here in 1936.

By virtue of his victory, Lash became the first to win the 43-year-old competition six times.

12 Teams Wait Gun In 5-Day Bike Grind

NEW YORK, Nov. 20 (INS)—A field of 12 teams, including many international favorites despite the European war, was ready today for the gun which at 9 p. m. this evening will start the first five-day bike race in the history of Madison Sq. Garden, curtailed a day because of prior commitments.

The favorites were the Peden brothers, Torchy and Doug, of Victoria, B. C. These Canadian riders won the last race in the Garden and two weeks ago the Chicago grind.

Bradley Gift Of $10,000 Aids Needy Kids

LEXINGTON, Ky., Nov. 20 (AP)—Col. E. R. Bradley, whose horses have won more Kentucky Derby runnings than any other owner, today set aside his annual contribution of $10,000 for Kentucky orphans and other indigent children.

The Bradley fund has been a part of the holiday observance in Kentucky since the noted sportsman inaugurated what now amounts to a tradition by contributing in 1921 the purse won by his fleet three-year-old filly Bit O' White in the Louisville Cup race.

Interrupted only during 1928-31 when the colonel sponsored and paid the expenses of charity race meetings from which all the proceeds were applied to the same charitable cause, Bradley has donated at least $10,000 annually for holiday enjoyment of children.

WILSON AT BOWIE AFTER PICKING 422 WINNERS HERE

Dave Wilson was basking in Maryland's sunshine today, following a summer season in New England in which he led all other turf handicappers by a substantial margin.

Wilson is in Maryland to handicap the races at Bowie, and he will pass his selections along daily to readers of the Boston Evening American and Boston Sunday Advertiser.

Wilson is the lone New England handicapper who follows the horses every day in the year. Following Bowie, he will move to Charles Town, W. Va., and thence on to the Florida meeting at Hialeah and Tropical Parks. In the spring he will move back to Maryland, and he will return to New England in time for the first day's racing in this section.

During the six New England meetings, Wilson amassed the grand total of 422 winners in the 210 days of racing. During the recent Narragansett meeting he had 58 winners in the 24 days. A flat $2 wager on his selections would have returned a profit of $67.80.

Wilson led five of the six meetings in N. E. In the second stretch from July 26 to Aug. 12, Bill McAuley of the Record led the field with 68 winners to 64 for Dave.

In the first meeting at 'Gansett Wilson had 48 winners during the 18-day stretch. During the long Suffolk meeting he compiled the incredible total of 140 winners.

In Rockingham's first short meeting he had 41 winners. He had 64 in the second 'Gansett session which Bill McAuley led, and 71 more in the final Rockingham dates. Then at the final 'Gansett meeting he had 58.

Where can you find his equal?

All-Americas of '38 Standouts as Pros

CHICAGO, Nov. 20 (AP)—Professional football's glamor boys—the Davey O'Briens, Parker Halls and Sid Luckmans—are finding fame in the cash-and-carry game no harder to achieve than in the college end.

The college youngsters also are doing their share toward setting a new attendance mark. The four Sunday games drew 115,422, an average of more than 23,000 per game.

O'BRIEN SETS RECORD

Parker Hall, pro freshman and All-America back at Mississippi a year ago, turned the Rams-Lions game into a one-man show as his Cleveland club thrashed the Detroiters, 14 to 3, dropping the losers from a tie for first to third place in the Western division of the National League.

Hall accounted for both touchdowns with deft aerial pitching, tossing a seven-yard pass to Johnny Wilson for one tally and another to Jim Benton for the second touchdown.

But even this dazzling performance was below that of little Davey O'Brien, Texas Christian All-America of 1938, who completed passes all over the field, in vain, for the Philadelphia Eagles.

O'Brien connected for 21 out of 36, breaking his own league record of 19 completed passes for a single game, but the Eagles lost the game to the Chicago Bears, 27 to 14.

OSMANSKI RUNS 65 YARDS

Osmanski ran 65 yards for the first touchdown, and Luckman's passing and kicking were outstanding. These four combined with other Bears to roll up the amazing net yardage total of 631 yards by ground and air.

Green Bay smashed Brooklyn easily, 28 to 0, and now is favored to win the Western Division title. In the Eastern division Washington and New York maintained their stalemate for the top spot.

Next Sunday the Giants play Brooklyn while the Redskins meet the Lions. If both win, the Eastern title will be determined when they engage each other Dec. 3.

'Zero Kid' Gets First Shut Out Over Chicago

CHICAGO, Nov. 20 (AP)—The Boston Bruins, National Hockey League champions, still have the Indian sign on the Chicago Blackhawks.

The Hawks, who have not defeated the Bruins in the last 11 games between the two this season and last year, bowed again 2-0, before 16,784 spectators in Chicago Stadium.

The rookie-studded Chicago team played the Bruins on even terms in a game highlighted by defensive tactics until midway of the third period. Then with only 10 minutes left to play Roy Conacher fired the disc past Goalie Mike Karakas for what proved to be the winning goal. He was assisted by Bill Cowley.

Facing defeat, the Hawks risked an even worse setback by taking the offensive, but all efforts to get the disc by Goalie Frank Brimsek were to no avail.

George Allen, one of the Hawk rookies, was injured in the last period when he was thrown head first into the boards near the Hawk goal. He was revived on the ice and later taken to Garfield Park hospital for examination.

The Bruins departed for Boston directly after the game where they will face the Montreal Canadiens for the second time of the young season tomorrow night.

Davey Proves Pro Grid Goliath

Davey O'Brien isn't much in a huddle—dwarfed by the huskies on the roster of the Philadelphia Eagles—but give him the ball for one of those bullet-like heaves and he assumes impressive stature.

The spunky 143-pounder is breaking his own passing records as the season draws to a close and right now he is gunning for the Pittsburgh Pirates and a couple of wins for the Eagles who need them.

Calmly, and with fine precision, he pitched 36 passes, completing 21, one of them for a total gain of 247 yards. That bettered his record-breaking performance of the week before against the Green Bay Packers.

The little man will be in there pitching for more records when the Eagles and Pirates meet Thursday at Philadelphia, and again Sunday at Pittsburgh.

School Grid Race Remains Unchanged

By MICHAEL GILLOOLY

Form, which introduced Mae West to a small fortune, was the general rule on the schoolboy fronts as the favorites came through with flying colors to leave the chase for the state title unchanged from the rating of the past few weeks.

Brockton continued to set the pace with Lawrence, Medford and Everett breathing hard to keep up with the hot tempo being set by the powerful Shoe City machine.

There was no denying Brockton last week as a courageous Somerville team took its worst battering of the season. Charlie Holden's boys struck twice in the opening stanza before the battle got fully underway and then it was all over.

SUBS TOOK OVER

As a matter of fact, the first stringers had nothing more than a dress rehearsal, the subs taking over in the second stanza, resuming their places after the score in the third canto and then winding up the ball game with a blanking. The Brocktons just couldn't be stopped and probably won't be with Rogers high of Rhode Island slated to take a fall this Saturday.

Capt. John Brennan, Ed Melillo and Tom Crispo somewhat salved the Somerville setback. This trio were particularly outstanding for their overmatched outfit.

Although John Callaghy's passing was off the usual form, Lawrence had the joyride anticipated while maintaining its undefeated record, while Medford staged another grand showing to slip by the rugged Arlington crew.

MEDFORD GETS REST

Medford will rest this week, with only its traditional rival, Malden, standing in its path towards an undefeated season. Twice tied, the Mystics could sneak into the championship should Brockton, by some happening, and Lawrence falter.

Everett proved to all doubters that its eleven was one of the top in the state in downing Malden. The Dennie Gildea club has lost only to Manchester Central of New Hampshire while more than holding its own in competition, and should the boys take Chelsea they might have a legitimate claim to the mythical honors.

Along with the Brockton-Rogers game, the added attraction which will find Saugus invading Salem Saturday will give the fans a tasty warm-up to the Turkey Day rivalries. Saugus, which Coach Buzz Harvey will tell you is the best team in New England, has been stepping high since its opener and this addition comes as no surprise.

On comparative scores, the Sachems boast the edge, whipping Marblehead by 40 to 0 while the Witches boast a three-touchdown edge over the common rival.

Meanwhile, Boston district schools will begin to close their schedules. Charlestown winds up against East Boston tomorrow. Brighton will try to close its slate with an undefeated record as Roslindale halts activities Thursday and Hyde Park and Jamaica Plain finish Friday.
